

Tomoko / Kubo · Yoshimichi Yui
Editors

The Rise in Vacant Housing in Post-growth Japan

Housing Market, Urban Policy, and Revitalizing Aging Cities

Contents

Part I Housing Market, Urbanization, and Housing Vacancies in Japan

- 1 Why the Rise in Urban Housing Vacancies Occurred and Matters in Japan 3
Tomoko Kubo and Michihiro Mashita
- 2 Mapping the Problems of Housing Vacancies in Japan 23
Yoshiki Wakabayashi
- 3 Changes in Essential Facilities of Housing Estates in an Aging Society: The Failure of City Planning in Japan 33
Yoshimichi Yui

Part II Case Studies

- 4 Geodemographic Characteristics of Vacant Houses in the Resale
Condominium Market in the Kansai Metropolitan Area 45
Yoji Kamimura, Masaya Uesugi and Keiji Yano
- 5 The Decline in Price of Suburban Secondhand Housing in Hiroshima City 73
Yoshimichi Yui
- 6 Distribution of Vacant Homes in Tama City in the Tokyo
Metropolitan Area: Estimation Using GIS and Small Area
Statistics 87
Hitoshi Miyazawa
- 7 Urban Abandonment and Housing Vacancies in Japanese Local Cities: A Case of Kyo-machiya, Traditional Wooden Town Houses 111
Keiji Yano

- 8 A Problem of Vacant Housing in Local Cities: Utsunomiya City, Tochigi Prefecture Case Study 123
Hiroyasu Nishiyama

Part III Measures for Revitalizing Cities

- 9 Resolution of Vacant Housing Through Social Business:
Kominka Renovation Business by Nakagawa Jyukun Corp 149
Hiroyasu Nishiyama
- 10 Local Responses to a Rise in Housing Vacancies in the Nagoya Suburbs 161
Tomoko Kubo and Toshiyuki Otsuka