

SABINO CASSESE

A WORLD GOVERNMENT?

GLOBAL LAW PRESS
EDITORIAL DERECHO GLOBAL

SEVILLA • 2018

INTRODUCTION	13
------------------------	----

CHAPTER I
NATIONAL GOVERNMENTS AND GLOBALIZATION

I. FROM THE NATION-STATE TO THE GLOBAL POLITY	21
1. The ambiguities of the State	21
2. The first cycle: rise and growth	22
3. The second cycle: the decline of the State	30
4. The third cycle: resurgence of the State	36
5. The State in flux	41
6. Methodological implications.	44

CHAPTER II
THE GLOBALIZATION OF LAW

I. THE GLOBALIZATION OF LAW	47
1. Some motivating questions: the circulation and spread of legal institutions.	47
A. Can democracy be exported to Iraq by military force?	48
B. Can the WTO standardize government procurement?	49
C. Can all nations be asked to respect a single catalogue of human rights?	50
D. Can the United States require that consultation procedures be adopted by international organizations?	51
E. Can free trade induce the rule of law in China?	52
2. Phases and modes of legal globalization	52
A. Labor protection	56
B. Criminal justice	57
C. Government-citizen relations	58
3. Laws governing legal globalization	61
4. Studying the global legal order	65
5. Conclusion	67

II. GOVERNING THE WORLD	67
1. The paradoxes of globalization.	67
2. Globalization as shared governance	70
3. The ‘marbled’ structure of global governance	72
4. The global space	75
5. Looking to the future	79
III. DOES A “GLOBAL CONSTITUTION” EXIST?	80
1. Is the State the domicile of constitutionalism?.	80
2. The development of global constitutionalism: not an undisputed phenomenon	81
3. Globalization challenges constitutionalism	83
4. National constitutionalism and global constitutionalism are not similar	85
IV. THE GLOBAL DIMENSIONS OF DEMOCRACY	86
1. Hungary and the European Parliament	86
2. Democracy as a universal principle	88
3. Do global institutions have democratic credentials?.	92
4. Do global institutions reduce or enhance national democracy?	98
5. An overall evaluation of global democracy.	105

CHAPTER III
GLOBAL REGULATION

I. ADMINISTRATIVE LAW WITHOUT THE STATE? THE CHALLENGE OF GLOBAL REGULATION	109
1. Tuna fishing: how global administrative law was born.	109
2. The spread of global regulatory systems.	117
3. Development through mutual connections	120
4. A fluid organization	123
5. The joint decision-making technique	126
6. The global and the domestic are not two separate levels.	131
7. An administration with no constitutional foundation	133
8. The legalization of global administrative networks: towards a universal rule of law?	136
II. IS THERE A GLOBAL ADMINISTRATIVE LAW?	140
1. An important intellectual exercise	140
2. Bogdandy on the legal nature and principles of the global arena . .	142
3. What is law in the global arena?	143

4. The global legal space	145
5. The global legal space as a “marble cake”: shared powers	147
6. Legitimacy through the law	148
7. Is there a global administrative law?	151
III. GLOBAL STANDARDS FOR NATIONAL ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURE
1. Introduction	155
2. Administrative law as State law	159
3. International regulation	161
4. The regulators	165
5. The regulated	168
6. The regulatory process	170
7. The legal status of the rules	172
8. Conclusion	175
IV. RULING INDIRECTLY: JUDICIAL SUBSIDIARITY IN THE ECHR . 179
1. Deferential standards of review: from the margin of appreciation to subsidiarity	179
2. Protocol no. 15	181
3. “Competing aspirations towards unity and diversity”: subsidiarity as indirect rule	185
4. Defining and constraining subsidiarity	187
5. Conclusion: to what can subsidiarity lead?	190
V. THE DEVELOPMENT OF GLOBAL ADMINISTRATIVE LAW 191
1. The dimensions of global administrative law	191
2. Administration without a Constitution?	194
3. The “marbled” structure of global administration: the role of global regulatory regimes	195
4. Different types of rule of law	200
5. Development mechanisms	203
6. The study of global administrative law	204
VI. GLOBAL ADMINISTRATIVE LAW: THE STATE OF THE ART . . . 205

CHAPTER IV
JUDGING AND GLOBALIZATION

I. LEGAL COMPARISON BY THE COURTS	213
1. Judicial comparison	213

2. Why is judicial comparison spreading?	215
3. What weight to attach to foreign law?	216
4. Are there rules of interpretation by comparison?	217
5. Towards better judicial comparison	218
6. The so-called “legitimacy problem” of judicial comparison	220
7. Conclusions	220
II. THE CONSTITUTIONAL FUNCTION OF SUPRANATIONAL COURTS: FROM GLOBAL LEGAL SPACE TO GLOBAL LEGAL ORDER	221
1. Raison d'état in the European community courts.	221
2. National legal systems and the global legal space	224
3. The role of courts in the global legal space	227
4. The importance of the judicial construction of a global legal order	228
5. A hierarchy of legal systems?.	229
6. A unitary order?	231
7. A court-ordered world?.	234
8. From pyramid to temple to network.	237
III. THE CONSTELLATION OF GLOBAL AND NATIONAL COURTS: JURISDICTIONAL REDUNDANCY AND INTERCHANGE	239
1. Judicial globalization and its diversity	239
2. Why is judicial globalization rising	242
3. Judicial interchange	243
4. Courts as mediators: the case of proportionality.	248
5. “ Verallgemeinerungsfähigkeit ” and comparison	251
IV. INTERACTIONS BETWEEN NATIONAL AND SUPRANA- TIONAL LEVELS OF JURISDICTION	252
1. Ships passing in the night?.	252
2. The infallibility of supreme courts.	252
3. The transnational law of liberties	254
4. New guardians of the liberties	256
5. Constitutional courts are no longer alone	259
6. A “great disarray” or “the greatest triumph of constitutional courts”?	261