

Table of Contents

Preface	7
List of Abbreviations	8
Introduction	9
I The Concept of Eternity and the Doctrine of God
a) Concepts of Eternity and theological method:
Barth's theological inheritance	13
The eschatological No of dialectical theology
- timeless eternity	19
Anselm's Proslogion and Barth's theological method
- to consider the actuality of revelation as event	24
b) The authentic temporality of God's eternity:
God's eternity as the actuality of His temporality
in His relatedness to man	31
God's eternity as His authentic temporality
- the ontological basis of the temporality of creation	38
c) The pure simultaneity of God's time:
God's temporality and man's temporality	42
The three forms of God's eternity	49
The eternity of God and the constancy of God	59
Reactions and defence	63
II The Concept of Eternity and the Time of Jesus Christ
a) The Easter time of Jesus Christ:
The specific occurrence of God's eternity	79
The resurrection as Urgeschichte	82
The revelation of God's authentic temporality	91
b) The pre-Easter time of Jesus Christ:
The identification of His pre-Easter time	95
The prophetic time of the Old Testament	99
The time of creation and the eternal covenant	104
c) The futurity of Jesus Christ:
The revelation of His contemporaneity and futurity	112
The three forms of the parousia	120
Noetic rather than ontic provisionality	127

III	The Concept of Eternity and the Time of Man
a)	God's time and man's time:
	Authentic temporality and inauthentic temporality	131
	Man's time as "given time"
	Man's time as "allotted time"	137
	Man's beginning and man's end	142
b)	The gift of eternal life:
	Fellowship with the eternal God	149
	The unveiling of present authentic existence	155
c)	The provisionality of Christian existence:
	The Holy Spirit and the actuality of Christian existence	156
	The time of the Christian community	158
	Noetic and ontic provisionality	160
	Hope and assurance	169
IV	The Doctrine of Election and the Doctrine of God
a)	The being of God as event:
	The actuality and possibility of the knowability of God	183
	Being and act	188
b)	The being of God as decision:
	God as self-determined being	191
	The will of God and the being of God	193
c)	The being of God as the event of electing love:
	God's reiteration of His relatedness to Himself	195
	The true manness of God as His true Godness	203
d)	The being of God as the One who loves in freedom:
	The dipolarity of God's relatedness and absoluteness	208
	The a posteriori necessity of God's grace	219
V	The Doctrine of Election - the determination of Man in Jesus Christ
a)	Jesus Christ as the electing God:
	The actualization of God's eternal will	231
	Barth's 'supralapsarianism'	237
	Election as an event of God's authentic temporality in pure simultaneity	241
b)	Jesus Christ as the elected man:
	The true object of God's election	246
	The bearer of divine rejection	253
	The ontological definition of man in Jesus Christ	259
	The noetic distinctiveness of the Christian	260

VI	The Doctrine of Election - the realization of man's determination in the Holy Spirit
a)	The ontological definition of man in Jesus Christ: Universalism as the logical implication of this ontological definition of man? Ambiguity or an incomplete equation?	264 269
b)	The noetic and ontic participation of man in Jesus Christ: Election as an event of God's authentic temporality - inclusive of man's time Election as an event of God's Triunity Election as an event of the Holy Spirit - both noetic and ontic in character Barth's reticence concerning the person and work of the Holy Spirit	275 282 285 295 303
	Conclusion: Towards a theology 'after' Barth	309
	Bibliography
a)	Works by Karl Barth	317
b)	Works by other authors	318