

Women's Human Rights
in Nineteenth-Century
Literature and Culture

Elena V. Shabliy,
Dmitry Kurochkin,
and Gloria Y. A. Ayee

LEXINGTON BOOKS
Lanham • Boulder • New York • London

Contents

Introduction: Women's Human Rights Advancement in the Long Nineteenth Century Elena V. Shabliy	1
1 Alice Meynell's Negative Happiness: The Primacy of Emotion and the Nature of Art Laura H. Clarke	17
2 Struggles of the New Woman in the New World: The Life of the Nineteenth-Century Emancipated American Woman Jacquelyn C. Wenneker	35
3 "One of a Sex so Weak": Oppressed Womanhood in Thomas Hardy's The Mayor of Casterbridge Tatiana Prorokova-Konrad	71
4 "I, Too, Am an Individual": The Making of the Professional Woman in Netta Syrett's Writing (1890–1899) Mariam Zarif	87
5 Alice Dunbar-Nelson, the George Sand of New Orleans Angela R. Hooks	107
6 The Wonderful Adventures of the "Motherly Yellow Woman": Mary Seacole's Emancipated Journeys and Public vs. Private Life Camille S. Alexander	123

7	Women within Precincts: Colonialism and Racialization in The Madwoman in the Attic , Wide Sargasso Sea , and Jane Eyre Shilpa Daithota Bhat	147
	Conclusion	165
	Index	169
	About the Contributors	175