

YIDDISH WRITERS IN WEIMAR BERLIN

A FUGITIVE MODERNISM

MARC Caplan CAPLAN

INDIANA UNIVERSITY PRESS

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction: Weimar and Now 1

PART I. Spectral Empires: Landscapes, Nation-States, and the Homelessness of Weimar Modernism

1. A Past Become Space: Alfred Döblin and Dovid Bergelson
in Poland, the Soviet Union—and Berlin 41
2. At the Crossroads of the Twentieth Century: *Neue
Sachlichkeit* and Dovid Bergelson's Berlin Stories 91

PART II. Melancholic Conspiracies: Masks, Masques, and Baroque Aesthetics in Yiddish and German Modernism

3. Watch the Throne: The Baroque, the Gothic, and Symbolism in Der Nister's Early Stories 147
4. Harold Lloyd and the Hermit: Popular Culture,
Gothic Aesthetics, and the End of Der Nister's
Symbolist Career 192

PART III. Apocalyptic Origins: The Politics of Nostalgia in German and Yiddish Modernism

5. Arrested Development: Fragmentation, Apocalypse, and the Pursuit of Origins in Joseph Roth's
Representation of Eastern Europe 267
 6. Moyshe Kulbak's Berlin Writings: Here, There,
Everywhere (Nowhere) 303
- Conclusion: Origin Is the Goal 340

Selected Bibliography 355

Index 371