

MADLINE H. CAVINESS AND CHARLES G. NELSON†

WOMEN AND JEWS
IN THE SACHSENSPIEGEL
PICTURE-BOOKS

HARVEY MILLER PUBLISHERS

CONTENTS

Handy Reference for the four extant Sachsenspiegel picture-books	3
List of Abbreviated citations	5
List of Illustrations	7
Acknowledgements	29
Preface	31
Chapter 1: Reading the Sachsenspiegel picture-books	37
Chapter 2: The Sachsenspiegel picture-books and the material culture of the law	69
Picturing the law	79
Interpretation of the Sachsenspiegel in the changing political landscapes after Eike	98
Changing places and spaces to perform the Saxon mirror	103
Chapter 3: The textual and pictorial construction of social difference among Saxons	129
Kinship and gender, class and ethnicity	132
Performative symbiosis: a mirror for Saxon men	145
Saxons with limited legal rights: the young & old, the impaired & Rechtelos	161
What difference does the Sachsenspiegel make?	172
Chapter 4: Women and Wends in the mirror: Protection and control	181
Women's power and women's subjugation, the debate in gender studies	183
Women in the mirror: from dermic boundary to the limits of property	292
Immovable property and the plight of widows	207
Rape, adultery, and female criminality	214
A colonized ethnic group – the Wends under Saxon law	224
Chapter 5: Jews in a twilight zone: The vulnerability of the emperor's people	241
Jewish subjects in the longue durée of the medieval Holy Roman Empire	245
Ashkenazi Jews from Eike's time through the production of the picture-books	257
Jews in the Sachsenspiegel picture-books	267
Concluding remarks	284
Chapter 6: Reflections of the Sachsenspiegel picture-books: 1685-2010	295
Prelude: the German diaspora	296
Toward a reception history of the Sachsenspiegel picture-books	299
The rise of print culture and trans-European antiquarianism	303
Christian Ulrich Gruben, Lord Mayor of Hanover (1692-1767)	312
The Enlightenment construction of a deutsche Volk	329
Goethe, Grimm and Germanisten	331
Lithography and color: Kopp and Cropp; Batt & Babo; Spangenberg and Lübben	336
Photography, Rechtsarchacologie and Karl von Amira	350
The Third Reich and the cult of Eike	359
The picture-books divided between east and west	365
Bibliography	387
Appendix A: Glossary of legal and foreign terms	423
Appendix B: Excerpts from the Sachsenspiegel	429
1–2. Prologues	429
3. The two swords : emperor and pope	430
4. Control of game animals and women	431
5. The king's peace ordinance and the peace days	432
6. Priests and Jews not to bear arms; limits of corporal punishment	432
7. Arguments against slavery and bondage	433
Plates 1- 30	435
Index	467