

THE INDEX.

---

OF LIBERTY.

CHAP.	PAGE
1. Of the state of men without civil society . . . .	1
2. Of the law of nature concerning contracts . . . .	14
3. Of the other laws of nature . . . . .	29
4. That the law of nature is a divine law . . . . .	59

OF DOMINION.

5. Of the causes and first original of civil government . .	63
6. Of the right, whether we consider it in an assembly or in one person, which he hath who is endued with supreme authority . . . . .	71
7. Of the three kinds of government, Democracy, Aristo- cracy, and Monarchy . . . . .	92
8. Of the right which lords and masters have over their servants . . . . .	108
9. Of the right which parents have over their children, and of a kingdom paternal . . . . .	114
10. A comparison of the three kinds of government, each with other, according to the inconveniences of each one . . . . .	126
11. The places and examples of Scripture concerning the right of government, which make for proof of the foresaid doctrines . . . . .	143

INDEX.

CHAP.	PAGE
12. Of the inward causes which dissolve all civil government . . . . .	149
13. Of the duties of those men who sit at the helm of state	165
14. Of laws and sins . . . . .	182

OF RELIGION.

15. Of God's government by nature . . . . .	201
16. Of his government by the old covenant . . . . .	226
17. Of his government by the new covenant . . . . .	250
18. Of those things which are necessary for our entrance into the kingdom of heaven . . . . .	298

