

---

Contents

Contents

|  |           |
|--|-----------|
| Acknowledgements                    | x         |
| A note on texts and references      | xii       |
| 1 A teacher in an age of transition | 1  |
| Mill's life                                | 1         |
| The development of Mill's ethics           | 7         |
| Interpreting Mill                          | 13        |
| 2 Welfare and pleasure              | 19 |
| Welfare and ethics                         | 19        |
| Bentham's account                          | 20        |
| Haydn and the oyster                       | 23        |
| Mill's hedonism                            | 25        |
| Taking the higher ground                   | 28        |
| An alleged dilemma                         | 31        |
| The competent judges                       | 35        |

CONTENTS

|  |            |
|--|------------|
| 3 Experience, desire and the ideal                      | 45  |
| Veridical and non-veridical experience                         | 45         |
| Mill's account and the value of authenticity                   | 47         |
| Beyond experience  | 49         |
| Desire accounts  | 52         |
| Desire and reason  | 55         |
| The ideal  | 58         |
| Authoritarianism, awareness, pluralism and plants              | 62         |
|    |            |
| 4 The proof and sanctions of utilitarianism             | 67  |
| Moral theory and methodology                                   | 67         |
| Stage 1: 'visible' and 'desirable'                             | 72         |
| Stage 2: from the happiness of each to the happinessof all | 77         |
| Stage 3: nothing other than happiness is desirable             | 83         |
| Psychology and ethics  | 88         |
| Sanctions  | 90         |
|    |            |
| 5 What utilitarianism is                                | 95  |
| Rightness and focus  | 95         |
| Actualism and probabilism                                      | 99         |
| Acts and rules   | 102        |
| Levels of moral thinking                                       | 105        |
| Demandingness and rule-worship                                 | 112        |
| Split psyches and different discourses                         | 119        |
| Supererogation   | 125        |
| Punishment and the origin of moral language                    | 126        |
|    |            |
| 6 Integrity   | 135 |
| Integrity and the separateness of persons                      | 135        |
| Moral agency and responsibility                                | 137        |
| The self and motivation  | 142        |
| Alienation and demandingness                                   | 143        |
| Moral emotions   | 149        |

|  |            |
|--|------------|
| 7 Justice   | 155 |
| Justice  | 155        |
| Mill's debunking argument  | 156        |
| Duties, rights and obligations   | 162        |
| Retaliation, fairness and desert   | 167        |
|    |            |
| 8 Utilitarianism and freedom: On Liberty                   | 173 |
| Utilitarianism and liberalism  | 173        |
| The enslavement of the soul  | 176        |
| Harm to others   | 179        |
| Offence and slavery  | 182        |
| Folly and depravation of taste   | 186        |
| Freedom of expression  | 189        |
| The value of truth   | 191        |
| Individuality  | 195        |
|    |            |
| 9 Utilitarianism and equality:The Subjection of Women | 201 |
| Unmasking the morality of marital slavery                                | 201        |
| Chivalry and justice   | 203        |
| Marriage, equal opportunity and the liberation ofwomen               | 205        |
| Mill's empiricism and the power of ideology                              | 208        |
| The benefits of reform   | 211        |
|    |            |
| Bibliography  | 217        |
| Index   | 229        |