

Contents

Preface	vii
Introduction	1
Chapter One: Mercier's The Year 2440 , a Dream and a "Thought Experiment" Bernard Montoneri	9
Chapter Two: Origins of Hard Science Fiction: An Approach Fernando Darío González Grueso	31
Chapter Three: Beyond Utopia: The Dystopian Capitalist Society in Paris in the Twentieth Century (1863) Murielle El Hajj	45
Chapter Four: With Second Sight and Afro-pessimism: The Im/ Possibility of Black Utopia in Martin R. Delany's Blake; or, The Huts of America Michaela Keck	67
Chapter Five: The Phenomenon of Human-Animal Hybridization in Russian Science Fiction of the 20th Century Anna Toom	91
Chapter Six: Barjavel, Ravage: roman extraordinaire (1943) Bernard Montoneri and Murielle El Hajj	119
Chapter Seven: Dystopia as the First-Person World: Rereading E. M. Forster's The Machine Stops as a Pandemic Novel of a Global Society Akiyoshi Suzuki	145

Chapter Eight: Orwellian Themes and Echoes in Today's World—A Perspective Beena Giridharan	171
Chapter Nine: The 19th Century American Socialism: A Vision of a Future Utopia Majed S Al-Lehaibi and Bernard Montoneri	183
Chapter Ten: The Invention of Morel , a Projection on Dreams and Immortality Miguel Ángel González Chandía	211
Appendix: Non-exhaustive List of Titles in Science Fiction, Utopias and Dystopias	233
Index	245
About the Editor and Contributors	249