

Contents

Foreword by Series Editor, John Hick	ix
Editor's Introduction, William R. LaFleur	xi
Author's Introduction, Masao Abe	xxi
Part I Zen and Its Elucidation
1 Zen Is not a Philosophy, but . . .	3
2 Dōgen on Buddha-Nature	25
3 True Person and Compassion – D. T. Suzuki's Appreciation of Lin-chi and Chao-chou	69
Part II Zen, Buddhism, and Western Thought
4 Zen and Western Thought	83
5 Non-Being and Mu – the Metaphysical Nature of Negativity in the East and the West	121
6 Zen and Nietzsche	135
7 Mahayana Buddhism and Whitehead	152
8 Tillich from a Buddhist Point of View	171
9 Self-Awakening and Faith – Zen and Christianity	186
Part III Three Problems in Buddhism
10 Buddhist Nirvana – Its Significance in Contemporary Thought and Life	205
11 The Idea of Purity in Mahayana Buddhism	216
12 Emptiness is Suchness	223
Part IV Religion in the Present and the Future
13 Religion Challenged by Modern Thought	231

14	Religion and Science in the Global Age – Their Essential Character and Mutual Relationship	241
15	Sovereignty Rests with Mankind	249
16	The End of World Religion	261
	Notes	276
	Glossary of Sino-Japanese Characters	290
	Index	295