

More Than an Assistant

ALTs, Inclusion, and the Future of English Education in Japan

Nathaniel Reed

Contents

Section One: History's Blueprint	1
01 Between Foreign and Familiar	3
02 Bridging Worlds, Guarding Borders	19
03 Closing the Gates – Sakoku and the Psychology of Containment	41
04 Cracks in the Fortress – Language, Opening, and the Road to Meiji	63
Interlude: More Than English – ALTs and the Language of Openness.....	95
Section Two: Inside the System	99
05 The Illusion of Openness: Kokusaika, Soft Power, and the ALT Role	101
06 ALT Employment in Practice: Contracts, Categories, and Control	129
07 The Narrative Problem – Representation, Absence, and the Cost of Symbolism	181
08 Symbol, System, or Strategy? Rethinking JET in a Changing Asia	213
09 More Than an Assistant: Ambiguity, Contribution, and the Realities Beyond Soft Power	225
10 ALTs Who Go Further – Teaching Without Permission.....	261
11 Comparative Models of Assistant Teaching	279
Section Three: Teaching and Belonging in Japanese Society	303
12 “Where do you Live?” – Imagining Belonging in a Changing Japan	305
13 Society and the Shape of the National Imagination	311
14 Schooling the Nation: Institutions, Control, and Identity	335
15 Beyond the Team: What it Means to Be a Teacher in Japan.....	363
16 Students.....	391
Interlude: Between the Real and the Forced	419
17 From Confusion to Clarity: Building Connection through ALTO	423
Afterthoughts	435
Endnotes	439
Index	510