CHAPTER 1
Introduction	1
1.1 Aims and concepts	1
1.2 Outline of the study	6
CHAPTER 2
Theoretical prerequisites	9
2.1 What is auxiliary selection?	9
2.2 Auxiliary selection in Spanish	18
2.2.1 Auxiliated verbs	21
2.2.2 Sentence-level constraints	27
2.2.3 A note on reflexive verbs	30
2.2.4 Why was ser + PtcP replaced by haber + PtcP?	32
2.3 Summary	36
CHAPTER 3
A constructional approach to Spanish auxiliary selection	39
3.1 Resultatives and anteriors	40
3.1.1 The stativity of resultative constructions	43
3.1.2 Persistence of the resultant state at reference time	45
3.2 Origins of Spanish auxiliary selection	52
3.2.1 Origins of haber + PtcP	54
3.2.2 Origins of ser + PtcP	64
3.2.3 Differences between habere + PtcP and esse + PtcP	70
CHAPTER 4
A model of linguistic disappearances	75
4.1 Gradience and gradualness	76
4.2 Actualisation and diffusion	83
4.3 Interim summary: Two types of diffusion	86

- 4.4 Why and how do linguistic elements disappear? 87
- 4.5 Remanence and conservation 88
  - 4.5.1 Remanence 89
  - 4.5.2 Conservation 91
- 4.6 Persistence as conservation 96
- 4.7 Summary 101

CHAPTER 5

Methodology and corpus 105

- 5.1 Quantitative data in historical linguistics 106
  - 5.1.1 Usage frequencies and discourse traditions 107
  - 5.1.2 Usage frequencies and copying 108
  - 5.1.3 Dating the texts 111
- 5.2 Data selection 112
  - 5.2.1 A corpus of historiographical texts 113
  - 5.2.2 Determining the envelope of variation 115
    - 5.2.2.1 The multivalency of ser + PtcP and haber + PtcP 116
    - 5.2.2.2 Verbs displaying variable behaviour 126
  - 5.2.3 Queries 128
  - 5.2.4 Randomisation 129
  - 5.2.5 Quantitative survey of the data 129
- 5.3 Statistical methods 131
- 5.4 Summary 135

CHAPTER 6

Auxiliary selection in Old Spanish 137

- 6.1 Periodisation 138
- 6.2 Measurements 142
  - 6.2.1 Date of occurrence 142
  - 6.2.2 Auxiliated verbs 142
  - 6.2.3 Reflexivity 147
  - 6.2.4 Subject referentiality 147
  - 6.2.5 Locative, manner, intention expressions 148
  - 6.2.6 Temporal adverbial modification and number marking 149
  - 6.2.7 Modality 150
  - 6.2.8 Temporal-aspectual morphology 152
  - 6.2.9 Persistence 152
- 6.3 Descriptive quantitative analysis 153
- 6.4 Multivariate analysis 157
  - 6.4.1 Measurements 157
  - 6.4.2 Model selection 158

6.4.3	Results	161
6.4.4	Discussion	162
6.4.4.1	Verb semantics and subject referentiality	163
6.4.4.2	Reflexivity	167
6.4.4.3	Adverbials expressing manner, location, or intention	172
6.4.4.4	Temporal adverbial modification, number morphology, modality	172
6.4.4.5	Temporal morphology	176
6.4.4.6	Persistence	179
6.5	Summary	179
6.5.1	Transitivity	180
6.5.2	Reference to event vs. reference to resultant state	180
6.5.3	Persistence of resultant state	181
6.5.4	Discourse function	181
6.5.5	General summary	182
CHAPTER 7
Gradualness and conservation in the loss of ser + PtcP			185
7.1	Methodological approach	187
7.2	Remanence	191
7.2.1	Descriptive analysis	193
7.2.2	Multivariate analysis	197
7.2.2.1	Measurements	198
7.2.2.2	Model selection	199
7.2.2.3	Results	201
7.2.2.4	Discussion	201
7.3	Frequency effects	204
7.3.1	Longevity of ser -selection due to conservation	204
7.3.1.1	Descriptive analysis	206
7.3.1.2	Multivariate analysis	211
7.3.2	Changes in the distribution of auxiliary selection	214
7.3.2.1	Measurements	214
7.3.2.2	Descriptive analysis	216
7.3.2.3	Multivariate analysis	222
7.4	Persistence	248
7.4.1	Multivariate analysis	249
7.4.1.1	Measurements	249
7.4.1.2	Model selection	250
7.4.1.3	Results	250
7.4.1.4	Discussion	255

7.5	Summary	257
7.5.1	Remanence	257
7.5.2	Conservation	258
7.5.3	Persistence	260
7.5.4	Causes of the generalisation of haber + PtcP	261
CHAPTER 8
	Conclusions		263
8.1	Summary of findings	263
8.2	Relevance for studies of auxiliary selection	270
8.3	Relevance for studies on frequency effects	274
	References		277
CHAPTER 9
	Appendix		299
9.1	Composition of the corpus of historiographical texts	299
9.2	Query syntax per verb lemma	303
9.3	Full event history table	306
