

Contents

List of Illustrations	page ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Contributors	xiii
Introduction: An Invisible College in an Anglo-American World MICHAEL CORRIS	1
Part I. Artist, Object, Spectator
Introductory note by the editor	19
1 The Formalist Connection and Originary Myths of Conceptual Art FRANCES COLPITT	28
2 Content, Context, and Conceptual Art: Dan Graham's Schema (March 1966) ALEX ALBERRO	50
3 "Almost not photography" MELANIE MARIÑO	63
4 Soft Talk/Soft-tape: The Early Collaborations of Ian Burn and Mel Ramsden ANN STEPHEN	80
Part II. Display
Introductory note by the editor	99
5 The Second Degree: Working drawings and other visible things on paper not necessarily meant to be viewed as art JAMES MEYER	108
6 When Attitudes Become Form and the Contest over Conceptual Art's History ALISON M. GREEN	123
7 Understanding Information KEN ALLAN	144
8 "The Rotting Sack of Humanism": Robert Morris and Authorship RICHARD J. WILLIAMS	169

Part III. Recoding Information, Knowledge, and Technology

- Introductory note by the editor* 187
- 9 Affluence, Taste, and the Brokering of Knowledge: Notes on the Social Context of Early Conceptual Art 200
ROBERT HOBBS
- 10 Hanne Darboven: Seriality and the Time of Solitude 223
BRIONY FER
- 11 Art in the Information Age: Technology and Conceptual Art 235
EDWARD A. SHANKEN
- 12 The Crux of Conceptualism: Conceptual Art, the Idea of Idea, and the Information Paradigm 251
JOHANNA DRUCKER

Part IV. The Limit of the Social

- Introductory note by the editor* 269
- 13 Conceptual Work and Conceptual Waste 282
BLAKE STIMSON
- 14 Conceptual Art and Imageless Truth 305
JOHN ROBERTS
- 15 Art & Language, New York, Discusses Its Social Relations in "The Lumpen-Headache" 326
CHRISTOPHER GILBERT
- 16 Ian Burn's Conceptualism 342
ADRIAN PIPER

Throughout this volume, at opening of each part:

Carole Condé and Karl Beveridge: Selected illustrations from . . . It's Still Privileged Art (1976)

- Index 359