

Contents

Acknowledgements vii

Part One Rudimenta

One Easel Painting and Pictorial Order 3

Part Two Why the Renaissance did not Talk about Pictorial Composition

Two Alberti and the Composition of Bodies 45

Three Perspective and Composition I 69

Four Figure and Ground 97

Five Scale and Presence 123

Six In Search of the Whole and its Harmonies 169

Part Three The Discovery of Pictorial Composition in France

Seven Borghini, van Mander and Junius:
Northern Approaches to Pictorial Composition 189

Eight Poussin's Thoughts on Invention and Disposition 201

Nine The Beginnings of the French Theory of Painting:
Public Discourse and the Image in the Mind 229

Ten Perspective and Composition II 245

Eleven Du Fresnoy and de Piles's De arte graphica:
A Primer in Pictorial Composition 263

Twelve The Rule of the Tableau and its Losses 279

Notes 300

Bibliography 317

Index 325

Photograph Credits 332