
Contents

List of illustrations	page viii
Preface	xiii
Introduction: The importance of perspective and the metaphor of the arrow in the eye	i
1 The elements of perspective	17
2 Interlude: Brunelleschi's peepshow and the invention of perspective	32
3 The effectiveness of Brunelleschi's peepshow	39
4 The robustness of perspective	52
5 Illusion, delusion, collusion, and perceptual paradox	65
6 Perceiving the window in order to see the world	87
7 The bounds of perspective: marginal distortions	104
8 Why was the Brunelleschi peephole abandoned?	127
9 The psychology of egocenters	150
10 The invention of perspective and the evolution of art	162
References	174
Figure acknowledgments and sources	182
Index	187