

Brief Contents

Preface	xvi
UNIT I: UNDERSTAND YOUR POWER AS A DIRECTION-GIVER
Chapter 1: So, You Want Other People to Work Well Together?	3
Chapter 2: Distinguish Between Three Direction-Giving Options: Doing, Following, and Guiding Well	25
Chapter 3: Understand That Other Direction-Giving Options May Be Needed: Managing or Leading Well	47
UNIT II: DEVELOP YOUR OWN STRATEGIES FOR GIVING DIRECTION WELL
Chapter 4: Use Leadership Theory and Research to Prepare Yourself to Give Direction	73
Chapter 5: Develop a Framework and Position Yourself for Giving Direction	95
UNIT III: DEVELOP YOUR COMMUNICATION SKILLS TO ENHANCE YOUR DIRECTION-GIVING
Chapter 6: Figure Out How to Communicate Effectively	119
Chapter 7: Shape Effective Experiences and Expectations for Citizenship in Your Group	139

UNIT IV: USE STORIES TO UNITE YOUR GROUP'S EFFORTS

Chapter 8: Help Shape the Story of Your Organization, Team, or Community	163
Chapter 9: Develop the Framing Skills Needed by Every Direction-Giver	183
Chapter 10: Leadership Vision Can Be a Crisis-Based Direction-Giving Story	205
References	227
Index	239
About the Authors	247

Detailed Contents

List of Tables	xiv
Preface	xvi
UNIT I: UNDERSTAND YOUR POWER AS A DIRECTION-GIVER
Chapter 1: So, You Want Other People to Work Well Together?	3
Groups Can Create a Community, Calm a Complex Organization, or Move Millions	4
Grouping, Group Direction, and Direction-Giving Are Human Responses to Exigencies	8
Direction-Giving Types Include the Work of a Doer, Follower, Guide, Manager, and Leader	13
Everyone Has the Obligation to Help His or Her Group to Thrive: The Social Contract of Citizenship	20
In Conclusion	22
Chapter 2: Distinguish Between Three Direction-Giving Options: Doing, Following, and Guiding Well	25
Specific Exigencies, Credentials, and Competencies Frame Each Type of Direction-Giver	26
Giving Direction as a Doer Requires Competence	29
A Group's Need Creates an Exigency for a Doer	31
Credentialing as a Doer Requires You to Accomplish Something Competently	32
Communicating Competently Blends Your Act as a Doer Into the Group's Need	33
Giving Direction as a Follower Requires Affiliative Receptivity	34

A Direction-Giver's Initiative Creates an Exigency for a Follower	37
Credentialing as a Follower Requires Showing You Offer an Able and Desirable Affiliation	37
Communicating Competently Blends Your Followership With a Direction-Giver's Efforts	39
Giving Direction as a Guide Requires Credibility	41
Every Group Needs Direction at Many Points in Time, Creating the Guideship Exigency	42
Credentialing as a Guide Requires You to Create an Impression of Credibility	43
Communicating Competently, Your Guideship Ought to Take Care With a Group's Attentions	44
In Conclusion	45

Chapter 3: Understand That Other Direction-Giving
Options May Be Needed: Managing or Leading Well 47

There Are Many Names for Leadership: Definitions Too	48
Giving Direction as a Manager Requires the Ability to Marshal Resources	51
The Odious, the Complex, and the Everlasting Provide Exigencies for a Manager	53
Credentialing as a Manager Is Based in the Stories You and Others Tell of Your Experience	56
Doing and Interpreting Your Management Work for the Group Requires a Variety of Skills	57
Giving Direction as a Leader Requires Articulating a Group-Transformative Vision	61
A System-Threatening Crisis or Opportunity Provides the Exigency for Leadership	64
Credentialing to Be Seen by Others as a Leader Requires You to Articulate a Salient Vision	66
Your Effective Leadership Is Not Necessarily Tied to Specific Communication Skills	67
Beware Easy Misconceptions About These Five Types of Direction-Givers	68
In Conclusion	69

UNIT II: DEVELOP YOUR OWN STRATEGIES FOR GIVING DIRECTION WELL

Chapter 4: Use Leadership Theory and Research to Prepare Yourself to Give Direction

73

- The Traits Perspective Focuses on Who You Are to Explain Your Effectiveness 74
- Developing Emotional Intelligence and Resilience May Matter More Than Your IQ 76
- Self-Monitoring and Rhetorical Sensitivity Orient You to the Resources Available Around You 78
- Situational, Styles, and Contingency Perspectives Focus on Behavioral Choices You Make 80
- Great Leaders During Times of Crisis and Hemphill's Work Show That Situation Matters 80
- The Styles Perspective Says Pick the Right Way to Treat Those With Whom You Group 83
- The Contingency Perspective Says You Need to Adjust to Recurring "What Ifs" of Grouping 86
- The Functional Perspective Focuses on What You Can Do for Your Group 89
- Benne and Sheats Say Every Group Must Serve Task, Relational, and Individual Functions 90
- Blake and Mouton's Managerial Grid Says You Need to Balance Those Functions 91
- Your Grouping Choices Also Need to Earn You at Least One Process Prize From Grouping 91
- Explicit and Implicit Theories of Effective Grouping and Direction-Giving Are in Play 92
- In Conclusion 93

Chapter 5: Develop a Framework and Position Yourself for Giving Direction

95

- A Direction-Giving Framework Should Have a Philosophy, Exemplar Model, and Guidelines 96
- Taylor's Scientific Management Is One Framework for Giving Direction Well 97
- Mayo's Hawthorne Effect Shows the Need for a Different Framework 99

Develop Your Own Effectiveness Framework for Each Type of Direction-Giving You Provide	101
Your Philosophy Should Put Your Values Into Your Framework and Then Into Action	102
Your Exemplars Provide Aspirational Stories and a Sense of What “the Best” Can Be	104
Your Guidelines Animate Your Philosophy and Exemplars in Your Own Direction-Giving	105
Position Yourself as a Key Direction-Giver in the Story of Your Group	106
A Process of Residues Helps Us Decide on Whom We Will Focus Our Attention	107
Take Stock of the Credentials You Have and What Can You Do to Help Your Group Thrive	109
Recurring Types of Situations Can Help Put Context to Your Direction-Giving Preparations	109
Some Advice That May Be Useful as You Position Yourself	111
In Conclusion	116

UNIT III: DEVELOP YOUR COMMUNICATION SKILLS TO ENHANCE YOUR DIRECTION-GIVING

Chapter 6: Figure Out How to Communicate Effectively	119
Communication Is a Tool Used to Transfer Information and a Process for Making Meaning	120
Accurate Transfer of Information Requires Fidelity	120
Making Meaning Involves Finding the Utility Involved	122
People Communicate for Purposes of Inquiry, to Influence Others, and to Build Relationships	126
Inquiry Is the Imperative to Make Sense of What Is Happening to You	129
Influence Is the Imperative to Get Others to See Things Your Way or to Do What You Want	130
Relationship Is the Imperative to Have Social Contact and to Get Along With Others	130
Attaining a Symbolic Convergence of Terms, Meanings, and Stories Requires Effort and Skill	132

Create Messages That Gain Attention, Enhance Understanding, and Encourage Identification	133
Receive Messages Reflectively, Oriented Toward Understanding Ideas and Finding Utility	136
In Conclusion	138

Chapter 7: Shape Effective Experiences and Expectations for Citizenship in Your Group 139

Help Shape Stories of Effective Group Experiences for Your Group	140
A Human Experience Is a Constructed Understanding of What Is Meaningful	140
Stories of Past, Present, and Future Experiences Are How You Give Direction to Your Group	148
Constitutive Rhetoric Is How You Co-Construct a Sense of Your Group and of "The Others"	152
Help Shape Stories of Experience That Create an Expectation of Citizenship in Your Group	154
Citizenship Experience Stories Stimulate Participation, Criticism, and Reasoned Conformity	154
How Groups Perpetuate Themselves Shapes the Experience of Citizen-Members	156
Play Your Part as a Citizen of Your Group	157
In Conclusion	159

UNIT IV: USE STORIES TO UNITE YOUR GROUP'S EFFORTS

Chapter 8: Help Shape the Story of Your Organization, Team, or Community 163

You Can Use Stories to Unite Your Group and to Give It Direction	164
Find Coherence in Co-Constructed Stories of Your Group's Experience	165
Narrative Provides a Potent Tool for Shaping Effective Group Experiences	168
Seek and Shape Stories That Show or Start Something Special in Your Group	169

Making Accounts, Sensemaking, and Defining Stories Are Foundations of Narrative	171
Characterization, Ideographs, and Rhetorical Depiction Are Potent Forms of Narrative	172
The Master Narrative Is the Overarching Story of Your Group's Experience	174
Create Coherence in Memorable Messages, Critical Incidents, Teaching Tales, and Nuggets	176
Figure Out What Others Will Hear in the Experience Stories You Tell and Help Shape	179
In Conclusion	181

Chapter 9: Develop the Framing Skills Needed by Every Direction-Giver 183

Framing Is Basic to All Communication: Your Frames Shape Your Direction-Giving Accounts	185
Frames, Like Definitions, Are How We Attach Meaning to Things	187
Frames Show Motives, Shape Experiences, and Provide Authoritative Weight in the Group	188
Develop the Framing Skills You Need to Use to Be Effective as a Direction-Giver	190
Naming, Faming, and Blaming Are Basic Aspects of the Process for Making Meanings	190
Claiming and Taming Are Elaborated Constructions of What Is Meaningful	198
Frame Your Group's Purgatory Puddle, Way/Process, Vision/Outcome, and Savior Complex	202
In Conclusion	203

Chapter 10: Leadership Vision Can Be a Crisis-Based Direction-Giving Story 205

Do You Need Vision as a Planning Tool or Do You Need a Vision That Transforms Your Group?	206
Vision/Outcome Represents All Your Group Products and Purposes	208

Conceptions of Vision Range From Low- to High-Intensity Forms of Direction-Giving Action	209
What Is the Relationship Between a Vision and a Direction-Giver?	214
Are You Prepared to Give Direction During a Crisis?	217
Crisis Is Different Than the Typical Pitfalls and Problems You Face in Every Group	217
Rhetorical Resources (and Your Responses Should) Vary Across the Circumstances of Crisis	220
You Can Prepare for Crises That Resemble Fires Needing to Be Put Out	222
You Should Understand Direction-Giving Communications During Transformative Crisis	222
Do Not Misuse Crisis: From Mistakes to Faux Crisis, False Pretenses, and Manipulations	224
In Conclusion	226

References	227
Index	239
About the Authors	247

List of Tables

Table 1.1: Examples of Exigencies for Grouping	8
Table 1.2: Direction-Giving Acts by Type of Direction-Giver	15
Table 1.3: Key Direction-Givers May Emerge Over Time	17
Table 1.4: Violators of the Social Contract: Those Who Do Not Help Their Group Thrive	21
Table 2.1: Exigencies and Definitions by Direction-Giving Type: Doer, Follower, Guide	27
Table 2.2: Credentials and Competencies by Direction-Giver: Doer, Follower, Guide	28
Table 2.3: Creating a Conducive Communication Climate: Communication Imagination	40
Table 3.1: Bass and Stogdill's Review of Competing Conceptions About Leadership	49
Table 3.2: Definitions, Exigencies, and Credentials for Managers and Leaders	51
Table 3.3: Examples of Direction-Givers We Call Managers	54
Table 3.4: Odious, Complex, and Everlasting Exigencies That Call Forth a Manager	55
Table 3.5: Correcting Misconceptions About Direction-Giving and Direction-Givers	69
Table 4.1 Direction-Giving Styles	84
Table 4.2: Bases of Power	85
Table 5.1: Our Frameworks Show the Bias of Our Values	102
Table 5.2: Recurring Sets of Circumstances: Direction-Conducive Groups	110

Table 5.3: Tactics or Guidelines for Effective Direction-Giving	112
Table 5.4: Warrants Provide Reasons to Accept Your Direction-Giving Attempt	114
Table 5.5: Counter-Direction-Giving and Alternative-Direction-Giving Warrants	115
Table 6.1: Imperatives Goad Our Communication, Interaction, and Co-Constructions	127
Table 6.2: Effective Message Creation and Reception	134
Table 7.1: Three Types of Experience Stories You Need to Share as You Group	140
Table 7.2: How Shaping Accounts Integrates Experience, Meaning, and Communication	143
Table 7.3: Engagement in the Group and the Ignorant Citizen	158
Table 8.1: A Nomenclature for Story	171
Table 9.1: Consider the Rhetorical Resources You Can Dig Out of the “Frame” Metaphor	185
Table 9.2: Five Interwoven Framing Forms and Skills	191
Table 9.3: Examples of Naming, Faming, and Blaming in Action (+ Shaming and Maiming)	193
Table 9.4: Taming Frames That Can Enhance Your Influence	201
Table 9.5: Group Terrain for You to Frame With Your Direction-Giving Attempts	202
Table 10.1: The Mythos and Mystique of Leaders and Leadership	207
Table 10.2: Framing Functions That Vision/Outcome (V/O) Rhetoric Can Help You Serve	210
Table 10.3 Continuum of Vision Intensity: Varying Levels of Force Perceived in Exigencies, Rhetorical Resources, Direction-Giver Rhetoric, Member Engagement, and Salience	211
Table 10.4: Various Conceptions of the Origins of a Vision	215
Table 10.5: Various Conceptions of a Visionary as the Source of Vision	216
Table 10.6: Best Practices for Crisis Communications	223