

Contents

Foreword	vii
Information on Journals	vii
Part I Parents, Teachers – and, of course, Children	1
1 Piggy Nick – That’s a Good Word Garth Boomer	3
2 Talking with Children: The Complementary Roles of Parents and Teachers Gordon Wells	7
3 Real Writing, Real Writers: A Question of Choice Anne Baker	19
Part II Learning to Read-and-Write	25
4 Child Language Research and Curriculum Diane DeFord and Jerome C. Harste	27
5 Do We Teach the Way We Read? Lola Brown	38
6 The Teaching Craft: Telling, Listening, Revealing Donald M. Murray	42
7 Talking about Writing: A Classroom Experiment Phil Cormack	46
Part III And Gladly Teach	55
8 Demonstrations, Engagement and Sensitivity: The Choice Between People and Programs Frank Smith	57
9 Instructional Scaffolding: Reading and Writing as Natural Language Activities Arthur N. Applebee and Judith A. Langer	67
10 On Writing Something to Somebody Jerre Paquette	76
Part IV The Common Pool	85
11 The Place of Literature in Literacy: ‘Dip a Finger into Fafnir’ Margaret Spencer	87
12 The Teaching of Literature in the University: Some Problems Barbara Hardy	95
13 Modes of Response: Some Interactions between Reader and Literature Mike Torbe	105

Part V	Curriculum: 'I Know Where I'm Going'	115
14	Negotiating the Curriculum Garth Boomer	117
15	The Case for Restoring Grammar Ian Pringle	126
16	Improvisation Dorothy Heathcote	136
Part VI	'Commission 7' or the Politics of Language and Learning	141
17	Preparation for Newspeak: The English Teacher's Responsibility? Margaret Gill	143
18	The Bible and the Vernacular: The Significance of Language Across the Curriculum Peter Medway	153
19	The Politics of English Teaching: A Broad View: Have Vision and Do What Is Possible Jack Shallcrass	158
Part VII	Problems and Opportunities	167
20	'Strangers No More': A Liberatory Literacy Curriculum Kyle Fiore and Nan Elsasser	169
21	Teaching English in the Multicultural Environment Bernard Gadd	182
22	A Lot of Talk About Nothing Shirley Brice Heath	190
	Editor's References	199