

Table of Contents

INTRODUCTION: The scope and nature of the Inquiry; and acknowledgements

PLAN OF THE REPORT

PART ONE

ATTITUDES AND STANDARDS

		Paragraph	Page
CHAPTER 1	ATTITUDES TO THE TEACHING OF ENGLISH
	Dissatisfaction with standards of English	1.1 -1.3	3
	Opposing views of English teaching ..	1.4 -1.8	4
	The needs of English teaching	1.9 -1.10	7
CHAPTER 2	STANDARDS OF READING
	Definitions of literacy	2.1 -2.2	10
	Comparisons with other countries ..	2.3	11
	The extent of adult illiteracy	2.4	12
	The influence of television on reading ..	2.5 -2.9	12
	The opinion of witnesses	2.10	15
	Comparisons with pre-war standards ..	2.11	15
	The N.F.E.R. Surveys	2.12-2.21	16
	The limitations of the Watts-Vernon and N.S.6. tests	2.13-2.16	16
	The sampling of the 1971 survey ..	2.17	18
	The interpretation of the results ..	2.18-2.21	18
	The results of local surveys	2.22-2.23	21
	Reading achievement and social class ..	2.24-2.25	22
	The reading standards of seven year olds	2.26-2.28	23
	The reading standards of eleven and fifteen year olds: a summary	2.29	25
	Implications for action	2.30	26
ANNEX:	The "ceiling effect" of reading tests ..	2.31-2.34	26
CHAPTER 3	MONITORING
	The value of monitoring national stan- dards of literacy	3.1 -3.2	36
	The criteria for a monitoring procedure	3.3 -3.5	36
	The setting up of the procedure	3.5	37
	The age at which monitoring should be applied	3.6	37
	The nature of the proposed reading tests	3.7 -3.8	38
	The monitoring of standards of writing ..	3.9 -3.12	39
	The feasibility of monitoring spoken English	3.13	40
	The principle of the question pool and light sampling	3.14-3.23	41
	The question pool	3.15-3.18	41
	Light sampling	3.19-3.21	42

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Paragraph	Page
The administration of the tests ..	3.21	43
Selective application in certain areas	3.22	43
The work of the survey team ..	3.23	43
Preparatory research and development work	3.24-3.25	43

PART TWO

LANGUAGE IN THE EARLY YEARS

CHAPTER 4	LANGUAGE AND LEARNING
	Language and inner representation ..	4.1 -4.4	47
	Language and thought	4.5 -4.8	48
	Language and discovery	4.8 -4.10	49
CHAPTER 5	LANGUAGE IN THE EARLY YEARS
	The acquisition of language	5.1 -5.3	51
	The influence of the home on language development	5.4 -5.9	52
	Study of young children's language needs by secondary school pupils	5.11-5.13	54
	Methods of helping parents to play a part in their children's language development in the home	5.14-5.20	57
	The ante-natal clinic	5.14	57
	Home visiting	5.15-5.18	58
	Television programmes	5.19-5.20	61
	Early language experience in school ..	5.21-5.32	62
	Talk and early writing	5.21-5.23	62
	Language programmes	5.24-5.29	64
	The teacher's appraisal and aims ..	5.30-5.32	67
	The case for additional adults in school to help in children's language development	5.32-5.41	67
	The guiding principles	5.32	67
	The role of trained aides	5.33-5.36	68
	The role of nursery nurses	5.33-5.36	68
	The participation of parents	5.37-5.40	70
	The implications for accommodation	5.41	72
	Home-school liaison	5.42	73
	The implications for staffing ratios ..	5.43	73

PART THREE

READING

CHAPTER 6	THE READING PROCESS
	Controversies about the teaching of reading	6.1 -6.3	77
	The definition of reading	6.4 -6.6	79

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Paragraph	Page
The Primary Skills	6.7 -6.26	80
Letter and word perception	6.7 -6.12	80
Learning to recognise letters ..	6.13-6.15	83
The relationship between sounds and letters: problems and solutions	6.16-6.26	84
The Intermediate Skills	6.27-6.38	89
Learning to anticipate	6.28-6.35	89
Letter and phoneme sequences	6.28-6.31	89
Word and syntactic sequences	6.32-6.34	91
Meaning and the use of context cues	6.35	92
Using the intermediate skills in combination	6.36	92
The use of Cloze procedure	6.37	93
Anticipation and the vocabulary of reading schemes	6.38	93
Comprehension skills	6.39-6.41	94
Literal comprehension	6.40	94
Re-organisation	6.40	94
Inferential comprehension	6.41	94
Evaluation and appreciation ..	6.41	94
Flexible reading strategies	6.42	95
Acquiring and organising information: general implications	6.43-6.44	95
CHAPTER 7 READING IN THE EARLY YEARS
The pre-reading stages: the parent's role	7.1 -7.6	97
Bringing books into the home ..	7.2 -7.5	97
Voluntary efforts; radio and tele- vision	7.2	97
The contribution of the Children's Librarian	7.3	98
The role of the school	7.4 -7.5	98
Reading readiness	7.7 -7.11	100
The notion of mental age	7.7	100
The criterion of intelligence ..	7.8	100
Vision and hearing	7.9 -7.10	101
The guiding principles	7.11	102
The early stages: general principles ..	7.12	102
Building up a sight vocabulary	7.13-7.15	102
Interaction between the child's reading and writing	7.13-7.14	102
The use of a word bank	7.15	103
Reading schemes: criteria for selection	7.16-7.20	104
Content and attitudes	7.17	104
The language they use	7.18-7.19	105
Reading schemes: their use	7.21-7.25	107
General principles	7.21-7.22	107
Look and Say schemes	7.23	107

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Paragraph	Page
Phonic schemes	7.24	108
Reading schemes in perspective ..	7.25	109
Colour coding and diacritical marking ..	7.26	109
The Initial Teaching Alphabet (i.t.a.) ..	7.27-7.29	110
The organisation of reading activities in the classroom	7.30-7.32	112
 CHAPTER 8 READING: THE LATER STAGES
Reading in the middle and secondary years: the objectives	8.1 -8.5	115
Reading as a specialist subject: the argu- ments	8.6 -8.8	116
Reading throughout the curriculum ..	8.9	118
Reading for learning	8.10-8.19	118
The reader's purposes	8.12	119
The organisation of reading and the use of bibliographical skills ..	8.13	119
Effective reading	8.14-8.18	120
Literal comprehension	8.15	120
Inferential comprehension ..	8.16	121
Evaluative comprehension ..	8.17	121
Flexible reading strategies ..	8.18	122
Self-assessment and development ..	8.19	122
Preparation for the reading needs of adult life	8.20	122
 CHAPTER 9 LITERATURE
The value of literature	9.1 -9.3	124
The need to expand voluntary reading ..	9.4 -9.11	126
The teacher's record of the pupils' reading	9.5	127
The balance between narrative and information books in school ..	9.6	127
Promoting interest in books ..	9.7 -9.8	128
The availability of good fiction ..	9.9	128
"Relevance" in children's books ..	9.10	129
Approaches to literature in school ..	9.12-9.21	130
The influence of examinations: negative and positive	9.13-9.14	130
Literature in thematic work: dis- advantages and strengths ..	9.15-9.18	131
The teacher's knowledge of literature	9.18	133
Individual reading and class reading	9.19-9.21	133
The value of poetry	9.22	135
Approaches to poetry in school ..	9.23-9.27	135
The teacher's knowledge of poetry, and the collection of resources ..	9.25-9.26	136
Literature and the influence of the teacher	9.28	137

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PART FOUR

LANGUAGE IN THE MIDDLE AND SECONDARY YEARS

CHAPTER 10 ORAL LANGUAGE

TALKING AND LISTENING: 10.1–10.31

	Paragraph	Page
Teacher-pupil dialogue in the classroom: nature and characteristics	10.1 –10.4	141
The teacher's understanding and evaluation of oral language	10.5 –10.9	143
Accent and "correctness"	10.5 –10.6	143
The differences between speech and writing	10.7 –10.9	143
The improvement of pupils' oral language ability	10.10–10.15	144
Language as an instrument of learn- ing	10.10	144
The teacher's role	10.11	145
Exploratory talk in small groups	10.11–10.12	145
Oral work in larger groups	10.13–10.14	146
The value of discussion	10.15–10.18	148
The Humanities Curriculum Pro- ject	10.16–10.18	148
Listening	10.19–10.21	150
The quality of listening	10.19	150
The improvement of pupils' listening	10.20	150
Listening exercises: their disadvan- tages	10.21	150
Resources for oral work in schools ..	10.22–10.23	151
Continuity and development in pupils' oral language	10.24	152
Examinations in oral language	10.25–10.29	152
Variety of syllabuses	10.26	153
Disadvantages and advantages ..	10.27–10.29	153
Research and development work by teachers	10.29	155
Oral language: implications for adult life	10.30	156

DRAMA: 10.31–10.42

Approaches to drama in schools ..	10.31–10.33	156
The value of drama for language develop- ment	10.33–10.38	157
The qualifications of drama teachers in secondary schools	10.39	159
Examinations in drama	10.40	160
Drama in secondary schools: some dis- cussion points	10.41–10.42	160

TABLE OF CONTENTS

CHAPTER 11 WRITTEN LANGUAGE

INTRODUCTION: 11.1

	Paragraph	Page
Language use and language study: general principles	11.1	162
WRITING: 11.2–11.14
Varieties of writing in schools	11.2 –11.8	162
The writer and his ‘audience’	11.9	166
Marking and correction of writing	11.10–11.11	167
The teaching of spelling	11.12–11.14	167
A policy for spelling; consultation between teachers	11.14	169
LANGUAGE STUDY: 11.15–11.40
Language study: definitions	11.15	169
The prescriptive view of language	11.16–11.17	169
The use of exercises	11.18–11.20	170
Improvement in language competence	11.21–11.25	172
The need for explicit instruction	11.21	172
Strategies for progress	11.22–11.25	172
Linguistics and language teaching	11.26–11.29	174
“Language in Use”	11.27–11.29	174
Examinations in written language	11.30–11.40	176
The case for examinations	11.31–11.32	176
The slowness of change	11.32–11.33	176
G.C.E. “O” level: some developments	11.34	177
C.S.E.	11.35–11.37	178
Examinations in language: general principles	11.38–11.39	180
Language at “A” level or its equivalent	11.40	180
ANNEX A Spelling	11.41–11.49	181
Causes of poor spelling	11.42–11.43	181
The use of spelling lists	11.44–11.47	181
Spelling: caught or taught?	11.48	183
The findings of the survey	11.49	183
ANNEX B Handwriting	11.50–11.55	184
Concern for handwriting standards	11.50	184
Handwriting in primary schools: the survey results	11.50	184
Criteria for guidance	11.51–11.54	184
Models of handwriting: some arguments reviewed	11.52	185
Materials, techniques, and the need for practice	11.53	185
The development of speed and style	11.54	186
The appearance and presentation of written work: its importance to the process of writing	11.55	186

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Paragraph	Page
CHAPTER 12	LANGUAGE ACROSS THE CURRICULUM
	The general principles	12.1 –12.2 188
	The primary school	12.3 188
	The secondary school	12.4 –12.8 189
	Language use within subjects ..	12.4 –12.8 189
	Talk and writing as a means to learning	12.5 –12.7 189
	Reading as a means to learning	12.7 –12.8 190
	The teacher's own use of language ..	12.9 191
	A language policy across the curriculum: some developments	12.10 192
	The organisation of a language policy across the curriculum	12.11–12.12 192

PART FIVE

ORGANISATION

CHAPTER 13	THE PRIMARY AND MIDDLE YEARS
	Pre-school provision	13.1 –13.2 197
	Co-operation between infant school, nur- sery, playgroup and home	13.3 198
	The organisation of primary schools: introduction	13.4 198
	Vertical grouping and the integrated day: the arguments reviewed ..	13.5 –13.7 199
	Vertical grouping and teaching methods: the findings of the survey	13.8 –13.10 200
	Organisation in the primary and middle years: the guiding princi- ples	13.11–13.15 204
	The size of classes	13.16–13.17 206
	Accommodation	13.18 208
	The staffing of the schools	13.19–13.23 209
	The need for additional staff in special circumstances	13.19–13.21 209
	The teacher with responsibility for language and reading	13.22–13.23 210
	The role of the head of the school ..	13.24 211
CHAPTER 14	CONTINUITY BETWEEN SCHOOLS
	Infant and First School—Junior and Middle School	14.1 –14.6 213
	Co-operation between schools: the guiding principles	14.1 –14.2 213
	Contacts between teachers	14.3 214
	The transmission of information, records and examples of work ..	14.4 –14.5 215
	A common policy for reading ..	14.6 216

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Paragraph	Page
Junior and Middle School—Secondary School	14.7 –14.16	216
Co-operation between schools: general	14.7	216
The transmission of information, records and examples of work ..	14.8 –14.11	216
Expectations of pupil achievement ..	14.12	217
Contacts between teachers	14.13	217
Contacts between pupils	14.14–14.15	217
Continuity and liaison: the urgency	14.16	219
 CHAPTER 15 THE SECONDARY SCHOOL
Specialist English and the integrated approach	15.1 –15.9	220
English in integrated studies	15.2 –15.4	220
English as a separate subject ..	15.5	222
Specialism and integration: the guiding principles	15.6 –15.7	222
Reading as a specialised activity? ..	15.8	223
Drama as a separate subject? ..	15.9	223
Pupil grouping	15.10–15.12	224
Streaming, setting, and mixed ability teaching: the findings of the survey	15.10	224
Pupil grouping: the guiding principles	15.10–15.12	224
The staffing situation	15.13–15.14	226
The teachers of English: the findings of the survey	15.13–15.14	226
The qualifications of English teachers	15.14	227
The involvement of teachers of other subjects	15.14	227
Timetabling: the effects upon English teaching	15.15–15.16	229
The Head of English Department ..	15.17–15.19	230
The head of English department: role and responsibilities	15.17	230
The head of English department: pressures and problems	15.18	230
The head of English department: supply and support	15.19	231
Clerical and ancillary help for the English department	15.20	231
Accommodation and facilities for the teaching of English	15.21–15.26	232
The allocation of rooms: the findings of the survey	15.21	232
Accommodation and facilities: the guiding principles	15.22–15.25	233

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Paragraph	Page
Consultation in the design of accom- modation	15.26	235
Classroom Control: implications for methods of English teaching	15.27	235
English teaching: an instrument of policy	15.28–15.30	236
The role of the head of the school ..	15.31	237
 CHAPTER 16 L.E.A. ADVISORY SERVICES
English Advisers: inadequacy of present provision	16.1 –16.2	238
Advisory support: a definition of need	16.3	239
The concept of an English advisory team	16.3 –16.10	239
Membership of the team	16.3 –16.6	239
The importance of an English specialist adviser	16.5	239
The appointment of advisory teachers	16.6	240
The adviser for language of children of families of overseas origin ..	16.7	240
The activities of the team	16.8 –16.10	241
 PART SIX
READING AND LANGUAGE DIFFICULTIES
 CHAPTER 17 SCREENING, DIAGNOSIS, AND RECORDING
SCREENING 17.1–17.14
A definition of screening	17.1 –17.2	245
The extent of present measures	17.3	245
Screening: the arguments reviewed ..	17.4 –17.6	246
The age at which screening should be carried out	17.5 –17.7	246
The nature of the screening procedure ..	17.8 –17.14	247
Systematic observation in the infant school	17.8	247
Information from the pre-school stage	17.10	248
The “at risk” register and the indi- vidual profile: relative merits ..	17.11	248
The transmission of screening records	17.12	249
The application of a standardised test: the arguments reviewed	17.13	249
Testing: the guiding principles ..	17.13–17.14	249
 DIAGNOSIS AND RECORDING: 17.15–17.25
The case for continuous diagnosis ..	17.15	250
Current practices in diagnosis: the find- ings of the survey	17.16–17.18	251

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Paragraph	Page
	The use of the word recognition test 17.16	251
	The use of the graded reading scheme 17.17	251
	Hearing children read 17.18	252
	The value of the informal reading inventory 17.19-17.20	253
	Structured observation and recording .. 17.21	254
	The use of check-lists 17.21	254
	The use of diagnostic tests 17.22	255
	Teacher, educational psychologist, and doctor: a team approach to diagnosis 17.23-17.24	256
	In-service training in diagnostic techniques 17.24	256
	The outcomes of diagnosis 17.25	257
ANNEX A	Results of an inquiry into assessment procedures applied by Local Authorities 17.26-17.33	257
ANNEX B	Descriptions of three different forms of screening procedure 17.34-17.36	261
CHAPTER 18	CHILDREN WITH READING DIFFICULTIES
	Relevance of other chapters to this subject 18.1	266
	Backwardness and retardation 18.2	266
	The notion of failure 18.3	266
	The need for a systematic approach to reading 18.4	267
	The extent of the problem 18.4	267
	Factors influencing reading retardation .. 18.5 -18.9	267
	Intelligence 18.6	268
	Emotional disorders 18.7	269
	Social handicap 18.8	269
	Unevenness of local provision .. 18.9	270
	Effectiveness of 'remedial education' .. 18.10-18.12	270
	Some research findings 18.10-18.11	270
	The factors essential for success .. 18.12	271
	Patterns of organisation of remedial help in school 18.13-18.17	272
	The variety of provision in primary schools 18.13	272
	The relationship between remedial help and the general curriculum .. 18.14	272
	The variety of provision in secondary schools: 18.15-18.17	273
	Guiding principles 18.16	274
	Resources and responsibilities for 'slow learners' 18.17	274

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Paragraph	Page
Remedial help provided outside the school	18.18	274
Provision for the child with special difficulties	18.18	274
The work of reading centres and clinics	18.18	274
Staffing of the centres and clinics ..	18.18	274
L.E.A. Advisory Service	18.18	274
Conclusion	18.19	275
The implications for social action ..	18.19	275
The importance of preventive measures	18.19	275

CHAPTER 19 ADULT ILLITERACY

The problems of the illiterate and semi-literate school leaver	19.1 -19.3	277
The tasks identified	19.2	277
The reasons adults give for seeking help ..	19.4	278
The growth of recognition of the problem	19.5	278
The difficulties of estimating the number in need	19.5	278
The need for information and guidance for those requiring help	19.6 -19.7	278
The schools	19.6	278
Press, radio, and television	19.7	279
Social agencies and others	19.7	279
Co-ordination of information ..	19.7	279
Existing provision	19.8	279
L.E.A. classes	19.8	279
Voluntary schemes	19.8	279
Other	19.8	279
Group instruction: some problems ..	19.9 -19.10	280
The need for privacy	19.11	280
The strengthening of provision	19.11-19.13	280
Financial help for voluntary schemes	19.11	280
The role of local authorities ..	19.12	281
Flexibility of tuition arrangements: individual and group	19.12	281
The training needs of tutors	19.13	282
The special requirements of immigrants ..	19.14	282
Implications for materials, research and evaluation	19.15	282
The need for centrally collected information	19.15	282
Conclusion: implications for action at school and afterwards	19.16	283

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Paragraph	Page
CHAPTER 20 CHILDREN FROM FAMILIES OF OVERSEAS ORIGIN
Children from families of overseas origin:
the present position	20.1 –20.2	284
The assessment of need	20.2	284
The variety of individual problems	20.3	285
The long-term problems	20.4 –20.5	285
Poor attainment: survey findings	20.4	285
Cultural identity	20.5	286
Implications for book provision:
ethnic bias	20.5	286
The language needs of immigrant children	20.6 –20.9	287
West Indians—Creole dialect	20.6 –20.8	287
Children for whom English is a second language	20.9	289
Problems of teacher supply and training	20.9	289
Organisation of language teaching	20.10–20.12	289
Some guiding principles	20.10	289
Second level language learning	20.11	290
Lack of sustained language help:
staffing implications	20.11	290
Need for language help across the curriculum	20.12	291
The role of advisers in immigrant language development	20.13	291
Special provision within nursery and infant classes	20.14	292
Teacher training implications	20.15	292
Communication between school and home	20.15–20.16	292
The role of members of minority communities	20.16	293
Bilingualism	20.17	293
Implications for schools	20.17	293
Need for further study	20.17	293

PART SEVEN
RESOURCES

CHAPTER 21 BOOKS
The printed word	21.1	299
Book provision in primary schools	21.2 –21.6	299
A book policy for the school	21.3 –21.6	300
Sources of information about books	21.4 –21.5	300
Exhibitions and educational book rooms	21.4	300
A teacher with responsibility for books	21.5	300

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Paragraph	Page
Organisation	21.6	301
The School Library Service	21.7 –21.11	301
Examples of its work	21.8	302
Consultation and co-operation between teachers and librarians: joint activities	21.9	302
Expansion under local government reorganisation	21.10	303
Pupils' need for continuity of book provi- sion between the different stages of schooling	21.11	303
Libraries in secondary schools	21.12–21.16	304
Staffing and accommodation	21.12	304
Task of the librarian; joint courses for teacher-librarians; dual qual- ifications	21.13–21.14	304
Resource Centres	21.15–21.16	305
Standards of book provision	21.16–21.18	306
Expenditure on books	21.18–21.27	306
A.E.C. recommended levels	21.18–21.19	306
Capitation allowances	21.20–21.23	308
Problems of resource allocation	21.23	310
Small schools	21.23–21.25	310
A standing working party	21.25	311
The effects of inflation, and of cuts in Government expenditure	21.26–21.27	311

CHAPTER 22 TECHNOLOGICAL AIDS AND BROADCASTING

The use of technological aids: guiding principles	22.1	314
Advantages of technological aids	22.2	314
Technical support for teachers	22.3	314
The production of materials	22.3	314
Implications for teacher training	22.4	315
The tape recorder	22.5 –22.6	315
Machines for teaching reading	22.7	317
The use of film	22.8 –22.10	318
Reprographic facilities	22.11	320
The extent of provision required: some criteria for guidance	22.12	320
Educational broadcasting	22.13–22.24	321
Radio: national and local	22.13	321
Teacher participation in pro- gramme production	22.13	321
General output television: its use in school	22.14	322
Educational television	22.15–22.16	322

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Paragraph	Page
Use of video-tape recorders	22.17	324
Problems of copyright and performing rights restrictions: need for revision	22.18	324
Need for research and evaluation of output	22.19	325
Finance	22.20	325
The need for more programmes for (i) parents and young children (ii) children with learning difficulties	22.21	325
“Sesame Street” and “The Electric Company”: implications for British programmes	22.22–22.23	326
The use of general output television to stimulate interest in language and literacy	22.24	327

PART EIGHT

TEACHER EDUCATION AND TRAINING

CHAPTER 23 INITIAL TRAINING

The present situation	23.1 –23.5	331
Existing provision for language and reading	23.2 –23.5	331
Inadequacy of present provision	23.2 –23.3	331
Variations between colleges	23.4	332
Conflicting demands upon time: the influence of academic studies	23.4	332
The lack of co-ordination between theory and practice	23.5	332
Some current developments	23.6 –23.7	333
Co-operation between colleges and schools	23.8 –23.9	335
Practical experience with children	23.8	335
The appointment of teacher-tutors	23.9	336
A language course for all intending teachers	23.10–23.11	336
A summary of recommendations for the language knowledge required of all teachers	23.10	336
The nature of the course	23.11	337
One year post-graduate certificate courses	23.13–23.18	338
Language requirements in the P.G.C.E. year	23.14–23.16	338

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Paragraph	Page
Some methods of work on language in P.G.C.E.	23.17-23.18	340
Language and the Diploma in Higher Education	23.19-23.20	341
One year training following the award of Dip. H.E.	23.19-23.20	341
Need for a substantial language course	23.19-23.20	341
Implications for staffing and resources	23.21-23.22	342
Need for lecturers qualified in language and reading	23.21	342
Lack of suitable accommodation and ancillary help	23.22	342
Improvement of the students' own language ability	23.23	342
Two examples of the proposed language course	23.25-23.26	343
CHAPTER 24 IN-SERVICE EDUCATION
The unity of initial and in-service education	24.1	347
Aspects of the induction year	24.1 -24.3	347
The primary school teacher	24.2	347
The secondary school teacher	24.3	348
Methods of in-service education	24.4	348
Innovation in education	24.4	348
The school-based approach to in-service education	24.5	349
The responsibility of the head of the English department	24.6	349
Availability of courses in reading and language	24.7 -24.8	350
Numbers of courses	24.7	350
Teachers' comments	24.8	350
Provision of courses: need for variety of approaches	24.9	351
Regional courses: A.T.O./D.E.S. courses	24.10	351
Need for more regional courses in English	24.10	351
Full-time courses
Opportunities for secondment	24.11	351
Higher level courses	24.12	352
Open University	24.13	352
Importance of adequate numbers of teachers with advanced training	24.14	352
Proposals for a progressive programme of training	24.14	352
Role of the L.E.A. English advisory team	24.15	353

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	Paragraph	Page
The development of language/reading centres	24.16	353
Relationship with professional centres	24.17	354
A national centre for language in education	24.18	355
Guiding principles	24.18	355
Proposed activities	24.18	355
Considerations for siting and funding	24.18	355
 PART NINE THE SURVEY
CHAPTER 25 THE SURVEY
I Introduction	25.1 –25.14	359
II Primary Commentary	25.15–25.23	365
III Secondary Commentary	25.24–25.31	402
IV Questionnaire Tables	25.32	444
V Technical Notes	25.33–25.41	502
 PART TEN SUMMARY OF CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS
CHAPTER 26 SUMMARY OF CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS		513
PRINCIPAL RECOMMENDATIONS
CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS		515
A NOTE ON RESEARCH		552
NOTE OF EXTENSION BY PROFESSOR J. N. BRITTON		554
NOTE OF DISSENT BY MR. STUART FROOME		556
APPENDIX A LIST OF WITNESSES AND SOURCES OF EVIDENCE		561
APPENDIX B VISITS MADE		577
 GLOSSARY		 585
 INDEX		 598