

CONTENTS

Preface	xv
PART 1. THE NATURE OF MARKETING AND SCIENCE	1
1 Introduction	3
1.1 Three Contradictions?	3
1.2 Objectives of Monograph	7
1.3 The Nature of Marketing	8
1.3.1 The Scope of Marketing	10
1.3.2 Is Marketing a Science?	17
1.4 The Nature of Science	18
1.5 The Unity of Scientific Method	21
1.5.1 Discovery Versus Justification	23
1.6 Conclusions on Marketing Science	28
1.7 The Three Dichotomies Model: An Evaluation	29
1.7.1 The Positive/Normative Dichotomy in Philosophy of Science	30
1.7.2 Is the Positive/Normative Dichotomy False?	30
1.7.3 Is the Positive/Normative Dichotomy Dangerous?	31
1.7.4 Is the Positive/Normative Dichotomy Unnecessary?	31
1.7.5 Is the Positive/Normative Dichotomy Meaningless?	33
1.7.6 Is the Positive/Normative Dichotomy Useless?	34
1.7.7 Is All of Marketing Thought Normative?	35
1.8 The Three Dichotomies Model as a General Taxonomical Framework for Marketing	39
1.9 Plan of Monograph	40
Questions for Analysis and Discussion	41
Notes	44
2 On the Marketing Discipline	46
2.1 On Marketing as . . .	46
2.1.1 . . . A University Discipline	46
2.1.2 . . . An Applied Discipline	50

2.1.3 . . . A Professional Discipline	52
2.1.4 . . . A Set of Responsibilities	55
2.1.5 Conclusion on the Nature of the Marketing Discipline	60
2.2 The Defining Marketing Controversy	60
2.2.1 On the 2007 Definition of Marketing	61
2.3 The Defining Marketing Research Controversy	64
2.3.1 Research Questions in Marketing	64
2.3.2 Conclusion on the Nature of Marketing Research	70
Questions for Analysis and Discussion	71
Notes	73
PART 2. THE FOUNDATIONS OF MARKETING THEORY	75
3 On the Morphology of Explanation	77
3.1 Explanations in Marketing	77
3.2 Criteria for Evaluating Explanatory Models	78
3.3 Deductive-Nomological Explanation	79
3.4 Statistical Explanation	81
3.4.1 Theories of Probability	81
3.4.2 Statistical Explanation and the Social Sciences	82
3.4.3 Deductive-Statistical Explanation	83
3.4.4 Inductive-Statistical Explanation	84
3.5 Are Logical Empiricist Models of Explanation Adequate?	88
3.5.1 Is the D-N Model Dead?	88
3.5.2 Is the I-S Model Dead?	90
3.6 The Pattern Model	92
3.7 Functionalist Explanation	94
3.7.1 Uses of the Terms Function and Functional Explanation	95
3.7.2 Preliminary Problems of Functional Explanation	96
3.7.3 The Logic of Functional Explanation	97
3.7.4 Functionalism in the Context of Discovery	100
3.8 Summary and Conclusions	101
Questions for Analysis and Discussion	101
Notes	103
4 Explanation: Issues and Aspects	104
4.1 Explanation, Prediction, and Retrodiction	104
4.1.1 Explanations as Potential Predictions	105
4.1.2 Predictions as Potential Explanations	108
4.1.3 Are Explanations and Predictions Potential Retrodictions?	109
4.2 Causal Explanations	110
4.2.1 The Notion of Causality	110
4.2.2 Evidence for Causation	113

4.3	Explanatory Incompleteness, Explanation Chains, and Infinite Regress	116
4.3.1	Marketing Explanation Chains	116
4.4	Other Forms of Explanatory Incompleteness	117
4.4.1	Enthymemes	118
4.4.2	Partial Explanations	118
4.4.3	Explanation Sketches	118
4.5	The Fundamental Explananda of Marketing	118
4.6	A Product Life Cycle Explanation	120
4.7	A Consumer Behavior Explanation	121
4.7.1	A Reconstruction of the Explanation	122
4.7.2	Structural Analysis of the Explanation	123
4.8	A Price Discrimination Explanation	124
4.9	A Wheel of Retailing Explanation	125
4.9.1	The Wheel of Retailing and Competition for Differential Advantage	126
4.10	Summary and Conclusions	127
	Questions for Analysis and Discussion	128
	Notes	129
5	On the Morphology of Scientific Laws	130
5.1	Role of Laws in Marketing Research	131
5.2	The First Criterion: Generalized Conditionals	132
5.3	The Second Criterion: Empirical Content	134
5.4	The Third Criterion: Nomic Necessity	136
5.5	The Fourth Criterion: Systematic Integration	138
5.5.1	Role of Empirical Generalizations	142
5.6	Summary	143
	Questions for Analysis and Discussion	144
	Notes	146
6	Scientific Laws: Issues and Aspects	147
6.1	The Time Issue	147
6.1.1	Equilibrium Laws	148
6.1.2	Laws of Atemporal Coexistence	151
6.1.3	Laws of Succession	152
6.1.4	Process Laws	154
6.2	Axioms, Fundamental Laws, and Derivative Laws	154
6.2.1	Bridge Laws	156
6.3	Extension and Universality	158
6.3.1	Singular Statements	159
6.3.2	Existential Statements	160
6.3.3	Statistical Laws	161
6.3.4	Universal Laws	163

6.4	Summary and Conclusions	165
6.5	Problems in Extension: The Psychophysics of Prices	166
	Questions for Analysis and Discussion	169
	Notes	170
7	On the Morphology of Theory	171
7.1	The Notion of Theory	171
7.2	Misconceptions of Theory	173
7.3	The “Systematically Related” Criterion	175
7.3.1	Formal Language Systems	177
7.3.2	Axiomatic Formal Systems	178
7.3.3	Rules of Interpretation	180
7.3.4	Issues in Formalization	181
7.3.5	The “General Theory of Marketing”: A Partial Formalization	182
7.3.6	The Theory of Buyer Behavior: A Partial Formalization	184
7.4	The “Lawlike Generalizations” Criterion	187
7.5	The “Empirically Testable” Criterion	188
7.5.1	The Nature of Empirical Testing	189
7.5.2	The Empirical Testing Process	190
7.5.3	On Confirmation	193
7.6	Summary	194
	Questions for Analysis and Discussion	194
	Notes	198
8	Theory: Issues and Aspects	199
8.1	Classificational Schemata	199
8.1.1	Logical Partitioning	200
8.1.2	Grouping Procedures	203
8.1.3	Criteria for Evaluating Classificational Schemata	206
8.2	Positive Versus Normative Theory	210
8.3	Deterministic Versus Stochastic Theory	213
8.3.1	The Nature of Deterministic Theory	214
8.3.2	Uncertainty in Explanation	215
8.3.3	Determinism and Marketing Theory	216
8.4	The Nature of General Theories	217
	Questions for Analysis and Discussion	220
	Notes	221
	PART 3. CONTROVERSY IN MARKETING THEORY	223
9	On Scientific Realism and Marketing Research	225
9.1	Why Relativism Was Rejected	226
9.2	Historical Development of Realism	228
9.2.1	Quantum Mechanics, Realism, and Positivism	229

9.3	Scientific Realism: Four Fundamental Tenets	231
9.4	Implications of Scientific Realism	233
9.4.1	Physics	233
9.4.2	Biology	237
9.4.3	Marketing and the Social Sciences	238
9.5	Scientific Realism and the Success of Science	239
9.5.1	Explaining the Successful Eradication of Smallpox	240
9.6	Scientific Realism and Scientific Progress	243
9.7	Scientific Realism Contrasted with Logical Empiricism	244
9.8	Scientific Realism Contrasted with Constructive Empiricism	246
9.9	Scientific Realism and Critical Realism	247
9.9.1	The Critical Realism of Niiniluoto	247
9.9.2	The Critical Realism of Sayer	249
9.10	Conclusion	251
	Questions for Analysis and Discussion	252
	Notes	255
10	On Science/Nonscience, Qualitative Methods, and Marketing Research	256
10.1	The Sciences Versus Nonsciences Controversy	256
10.1.1	Relativism and the Nature of Science	257
10.1.2	Revisiting the Nature of Science Arguments	259
10.1.3	Is the Relativist Nature of Science Argument a Straw Man?	261
10.1.4	Weak-Form Relativism	263
10.2	The Positivism Versus Qualitative Methods Controversy	265
10.2.1	Misconceptions About Positivism	267
10.2.2	On Antipositivism: For Reason	275
10.2.3	Paradigm Dominance in Marketing, Management, and Consumer Research	277
10.2.4	The Dominance of Positivism: A Postmodern View	277
10.2.5	Logical Empiricism as the Dominant Paradigm	279
10.2.6	Conclusion: For Reason	282
	Questions for Analysis and Discussion	283
	Notes	284
11	On Truth and Marketing Research	286
11.1	The Nature of Truth	287
11.2	Truth and Scientific Realism	288
11.2.1	A Scientific Realist Model of Truth	289
11.2.2	Truth Is Not an Entity	292
11.2.3	Consistent with Marketing Science Practice	292
11.2.4	Inconsistent with Logical Positivism, Logical Empiricism, and Falsificationism	293
11.2.5	Not with Certainty	294

11.2.6	Not Equal to Pragmatic Success	295
11.3	Relativistic Truth	296
11.4	Critical Relativism and Truth	298
11.4.1	The Falsity of Realism Argument	298
11.4.2	Reticulational Philosophy and Truth	300
11.4.3	Truth and “Utopianism”	302
11.5	The Philosophers’ Fallacy Revisited	304
11.6	Truth and TRUTH	305
11.6.1	Postmodernism and Dogmatic Skepticism	307
11.6.2	On Marketing and Noncontradiction: For Reason	308
11.7	Truth, Reality Relativism, and Idealism	308
11.7.1	Relativistic Reality	308
11.7.2	On Relativistic Reality: For Reason	310
11.8	For Truth	312
11.8.1	Trust, Science, Realism, and Ethics	313
	Questions for Analysis and Discussion	315
	Notes	316
12	On Objectivity and Marketing Research	318
12.1	The Nature of Objectivity	318
12.1.1	Objectivity and Objectivism	321
12.2	Logical Empiricism, Falsificationsim, and Objectivity	324
12.2.1	Are the Social Sciences Inherently Subjective?	327
12.3	Historical Relativism and Objectivity	329
12.4	For Objectivity: The “Negative Case”	332
12.4.1	Linguistic Relativism	332
12.4.2	Paradigms Are Incommensurable	335
12.4.3	Facts Underdetermine Theories	336
12.4.4	The Psychology of Perception	338
12.4.5	Epistemically Significant Observations	340
12.5	For Objectivity: The Positive Case	342
12.6	A Realist Theory of Empirical Testing	343
12.6.1	The Realist Model	344
12.6.2	Müller-Lyer Revisited	348
12.6.3	Threats to Objectivity	349
12.6.4	Implications for Marketing and Social Science	351
12.7	For a Commencement	352
	Questions for Analysis and Discussion	353
	Notes	354
	PART 4. TOWARD A GENERAL THEORY OF MARKETING	357
13	On the Resource-Advantage (R-A) Theory of Competition	359

13.1	An Overview of R-A Theory	359
13.1.1	The Structure and Foundations of R-A Theory	360
13.2	Developing the R-A Theory Research Program	364
13.2.1	The Introductory Period: 1995–96	365
13.2.2	The Period of Development: 1997–2000	367
13.2.3	The Research Tradition Period: 2001–Present	369
13.3	The Foundations of R-A Theory	370
13.3.1	Demand	371
13.3.2	Consumer Information	372
13.3.3	Human Motivation	373
13.3.4	Firm’s Objective and Information	377
13.3.5	Resources	380
13.3.6	Role of Management	382
13.3.7	Competitive Dynamics	383
13.4	Conclusion	385
	Questions for Analysis and Discussion	385
	Notes	386
14	Competition Theory, Alderson’s Market Processes Theory, and R-A Theory	387
14.1	R-A Theory Is a General Theory of Competition	387
14.1.1	Explanatory Power	388
14.1.2	Perfect Competition Theory and R-A Theory	390
14.2	Alderson’s Theory of Market Processes	393
14.2.1	Developing the Theory of Market Processes	396
14.2.2	Effective Competition Theory	396
14.2.3	Alderson’s Functionalist Theory of Market Processes	398
14.3	The Theory of Market Processes and R-A Theory	400
14.3.1	Conclusion on Alderson and R-A Theory	403
	Questions for Analysis and Discussion	403
	Notes	404
15	Strategy and R-A Theory	405
15.1	Business Strategy	407
15.1.1	Industry-Based Strategy	407
15.1.2	Resource-Based Strategy	409
15.1.3	Competence-Based Strategy	410
15.1.4	Knowledge-Based Strategy	410
15.2	Marketing Strategy	411
15.2.1	Market-Segmentation Strategy	411
15.2.2	Market-Orientation Strategy	413
15.2.3	Relationship-Marketing Strategy	413
15.2.4	Brand-Equity Strategy	414

15.3	Strategy and R-A Theory	414
15.3.1	Market-Segmentation Strategy and R-A Theory	415
15.3.2	Resource-Based Strategy and R-A Theory	417
15.3.3	Competence-Based Strategy and R-A Theory	419
15.3.4	Industry-Based Strategy and R-A Theory	420
15.3.5	Market-Orientation, Knowledge-Based Strategy, and R-A Theory	421
15.3.6	Relationship-Marketing Strategy and R-A Theory	422
15.3.7	Brand-Equity Strategy and R-A Theory	424
15.4	Brand-Equity Strategy and Society	424
15.4.1	The Indictment of Branding	424
15.4.2	For Brand-Equity Strategy	428
15.5	A Final Note	430
	Questions for Analysis and Discussion	431
	Notes	431
	References	433
	Name Index	471
	Subject Index	481
	About the Author	491