

Contents

List of figures	xiv
List of tables	xv
List of maps	xv
Abbreviations and conventions	xvi

1. Introduction	1
What is language?	1
Writing and signing	2
Speech sounds	3
Words and meanings	4
Variation	4
How many languages are there?	5
All languages are created equal	6

Part I Words

2. Word classes	11
Parts of speech	11
Open and closed classes	16
Lexical words and function words	17
Beyond English	17
Sources and further reading	18
Problems	18
3. Forming new words	21
The word and its parts	22
Compounds	24
Prefixes and suffixes	26
Back formation	27
Zero Derivation	28
Blends	29
Shortening	29
Alphabetisms and acronyms	30
Reduplication	30

Proper names to common noun	31
Taboo and euphemism	32
Other methods of dealing with new content	34
Sources and further reading	34
Problems	34
4. Meaning of words	37
Words and meanings	37
Hyponyms and hypernyms	40
Synonyms	40
Antonyms	41
Polysemy	41
Homonyms (homophones and homographs)	42
Homophony and polysemy: profit and loss	43
Deictic expressions	44
Set phrases: idioms and clichés	45
Conscious connections between morphemes	46
How do the vocabularies of languages differ?	48
Linguistic determinism: the Sapir–Whorf hypothesis	50
Sexist language	52
Arbitrary relationship between form and meaning	53
Dictionaries	55
Sources and further reading	57
Problems	57

Part II Syntax and Discourse

5. The simple sentence	61
Ideas of grammar	61
Predicate and argument	62
Phrase structure	64
Grammatical relations	67
Inflection	69
Questions	79
Negatives	80
Passives and other valency changes	80
Summary	82
Sources and further reading	83
Problems	84
6. Compound and complex sentences	87
Compound sentences	88
Complex sentences	89

Nominalization	96
'Correct' grammar	97
Sources and further reading	100
Problems	100
7. Using language	105
Types of communication	105
Given and new information	106
Discourse	109
Co-operative principle	113
Speech Acts	116
Conversation	118
Sources and further reading	119
Problems	119

Part III Speech and Writing

8. Phonetics	125
Syllables	125
Vowels	127
Consonants	133
More speech sounds	138
Markedness	139
Sources and further reading	140
Problems	140
9. Phonology	143
The phoneme	143
Putting the sounds together	150
Connected speech	153
Stress and intonation	155
Morphophonemics	156
Underlying forms	157
Sources and further reading	159
Problems	159
10. Writing	163
The Egyptians	163
Cuneiform	168
Towards an alphabet	169
Beyond the Mediterranean and Near East	170
Writing in general	173

Spelling English	175
Sources and further reading	178
Problems	178

Part IV Variation and Change

11. Varieties	181
Variation	181
Languages and dialects	181
Social varieties	186
Styles	193
Identity and solidarity	201
Sources and further reading	202
Problems	202
12. Language change	205
General	205
Sound change	211
Morphological change	214
Syntactic change	217
Semantic change	219
Loan words	222
Linguistic areas	226
Motivation and direction of change	227
Sources and further reading	228
Problems	229

Part V The Brain

13. Language acquisition	233
Basic requirements	233
Acquiring phonology	234
Acquiring syntax	236
Acquiring function forms	241
Acquiring semantics	242
Further stages	243
Sign language and its acquisition	244
Theories of acquisition	245
Second-language acquisition	248
Sources and further reading	250
Problems	251

14. Language processing: brains and computers	253
Brains	253
Computers and language	262
Sources and further reading	268
Problems	269
15. The origin of language	271
Animal communication	271
Pidgins	274
The origin of language	276
Sources and further reading	282
Glossary of terms	283
References and further reading	309
Index	313