

Contents

---

|  |           |
|--|-----------|
| Preface and Acknowledgments                              | viii      |
| PART I THE SCOPE OF DISCOURSE ANALYSIS            | 1  |
| 1 Overview  | 5  |
| 1 Introduction   | 5         |
| 2 "Core" examples from different approaches to discourse | 6         |
| 3 Plan of the book                                       | 12        |
| 2 Definitions of Discourse                        | 20 |
| 1 Introduction   | 20        |
| 2 Formal and functionalist paradigms                     | 20        |
| 3 Discourse: language above the sentence                 | 23        |
| 4 Discourse: language use                                | 31        |
| 5 Discourse: utterances                                  | 39        |
| 6 Summary: definitions, issues, and discourse analysis   | 41        |
| PART II APPROACHES TO DISCOURSE ANALYSIS          | 45 |
| 3 Speech Act Theory                               | 49 |
| 1 Introduction   | 49        |
| 2 Defining speech act theory                             | 49        |
| 3 Sample analysis: questions, requests, offers           | 61        |
| 4 Speech act theory as an approach to discourse          | 89        |
| Exercises  | 91        |
| 4 Interactional Sociolinguistics                  | 97 |
| 1 Introduction   | 97        |
| 2 Defining interactional sociolinguistics                | 98        |
| 3 Sample analysis: "speaking for another"                | 106       |

|                            |  |            |
|----------------------------|--|------------|
| 4                          | Interactional sociolinguistics as an approach to discourse | 133        |
|                            | Exercises  | 134        |
| 5                   | The Ethnography of Communication                    | 137 |
| 1                          | Introduction   | 137        |
| 2                          | Defining the ethnography of communication                  | 137        |
| 3                          | Sample analysis: questions as speech acts in speech events | 144        |
| 4                          | An ethnographic approach to discourse                      | 185        |
|                            | Exercises  | 186        |
| 6                   | Pragmatics  | 190 |
| 1                          | Introduction   | 190        |
| 2                          | Defining pragmatics  | 191        |
| 3                          | Referring terms: pragmatic processes in discourse          | 197        |
| 4                          | Sample analysis: referring sequences in narrative          | 203        |
| 5                          | Gricean pragmatics as an approach to discourse             | 226        |
|                            | Exercises  | 228        |
| 7                   | Conversation Analysis                               | 232 |
| 1                          | Introduction   | 232        |
| 2                          | Defining conversation analysis                             | 233        |
| 3                          | Sample analysis: "there + BE + ITEM"                       | 239        |
| 4                          | Conversation analysis as an approach to discourse          | 273        |
|                            | Exercises  | 279        |
| 8                   | Variation Analysis                                  | 282 |
| 1                          | Introduction   | 282        |
| 2                          | Defining variation analysis                                | 283        |
| 3                          | Sample analysis: the "list" as text                        | 291        |
| 4                          | The variationist approach to discourse                     | 330        |
|                            | Exercises  | 333        |
| PART III CONCLUSION |  | 335 |
| 9                   | Structure and Function                              | 339 |
| 1                          | Introduction   | 339        |
| 2                          | Structure and function in discourse analysis               | 339        |
| 3                          | Comparisons among approaches: from utterance to discourse  | 353        |
| 4                          | Conclusion   | 359        |
| 10                  | Text and Context                                    | 362 |
| 1                          | Introduction   | 362        |
| 2                          | What is context?   | 365        |
| 3                          | What is text?  | 378        |
| 4                          | Conclusion   | 383        |
| 11                  | Discourse and Communication                         | 386 |
| 1                          | Introduction   | 386        |
| 2                          | Aspects of communication                                   | 387        |

Contents

vii

|  |            |
|--|------------|
| 3 Discourse analysis and models of communication                   | 391        |
| 4 Summary  | 405        |
| 12 Conclusion: Language as Social Interaction               | 406 |
| 1 Introduction   | 406        |
| 2 Starting points: differences among approaches                    | 406        |
| 3 Principles of discourse analysis: language as social interaction | 414        |
| 4 At the borders of different disciplines                          | 418        |
|    |            |
| Appendix 1 Collecting Data   | 420        |
|    |            |
| Appendix 2 Transcription Conventions                               | 422        |
|    |            |
| Appendix 3 Sample Data   | 434        |
|    |            |
| Bibliography   | 439        |
|    |            |
| Index  | 459        |