

Contents

List of tables	xi
How to read this book	xii
Preface	xiii

A. INTRODUCTION I

I. Orientation	3
1.1. Grammar and semantics	4
1.2. Semantic types and grammatical word classes	6
1.3. Semantic roles and syntactic relations	9
1.4. The approach followed	11
Notes to Chapter 1	15
2. Grammatical sketch	17
2.1. Forms of the verb	17
2.2. Forms of the pronoun	19
2.3. Phrases	20
2.4. Main clauses	23
2.5. Adverbial elements	24
2.6. Relative clauses	27
2.7. Complement clauses	32
2.8. Word derivations	50
2.9. Clause derivations	52
2.9.1. Questions	52
2.9.2. Causatives	53
2.9.3. Passives	54 ←
2.9.4. Promotion to subject	55
2.9.5. Reflexives	56
2.9.6. Reciprocals	59
2.9.7. HAVE A VERB, GIVE A VERB and TAKE A VERB	61
2.10. Clause linking	62
2.11. Syntactic preferences and constraints	65
2.12. Summary of omission conventions	68
Notes to Chapter 2	72

Contents

B. THE SEMANTIC TYPES	73
3. Noun, adjective and verb types	75
3.1. Types associated with the Noun class	76
3.2. Types associated with the Adjective class	78
3.3. Introduction to verb types	85
3.3.1. Subject and object	85
3.3.2. Grammar versus lexicon	87
3.4. Primary and Secondary verbs	88
4. Primary-A verb types	94
4.1. MOTION and REST	94
4.2. AFFECT	102
4.3. GIVING	113
4.4. CORPOREAL	118
4.5. WEATHER	121
4.6. Others	121
Notes to Chapter 4	123
5. Primary-B verb types	124
5.1. ATTENTION	124
5.2. THINKING	132
5.3. DECIDING	138
5.4. SPEAKING	140
5.5. LIKING	155
5.6. ANNOYING	159
5.7. Others	165
6. Secondary verb types	168
6.1. Secondary-A types	168
6.1.1. MODALS and SEMI-MODALS	168
6.1.2. BEGINNING	172
6.1.3. TRYING	179
6.1.4. HURRYING	182
6.1.5. DARING	183
6.2. Secondary-B types	184
6.2.1. WANTING	184
6.2.2. POSTPONING	192
6.3. Secondary-C types	192
6.3.1. MAKING	193
6.3.2. HELPING	198
6.4. Secondary-D types	200
6.4.1. SEEM	200
6.4.2. MATTER	203
Notes to Chapter 6	204

Contents

C. SOME GRAMMATICAL TOPICS	205
7. I know that it seems that he'll make me want to describe her starting to say that she knows that it seems that . . .
Complement clauses	207
7.1. Parentheticals	209
7.2. Meanings of complement clauses	215
7.2.1. THAT and WH-	215
7.2.2. THAT and ING	218
7.2.3. Modal (FOR) TO, Judgement TO, and THAT	220
7.2.4. The role of for in Modal (FOR) TO complements	225
7.2.5. Omitting to from Modal (FOR) TO complements	229
7.2.6. Omitting to be from TO complements	231
7.2.7. ING and Modal (FOR) TO	233
7.2.8. WH- TO	234
7.2.9. (FROM) ING	235
7.2.10. Summary	237
7.3. Complement clauses with Secondary verbs	239
7.3.1. MODALS and SEMI-MODALS	239
7.3.2. BEGINNING, TRYING, HURRYING and DARING	240
7.3.3. WANTING and POSTPONING	244
7.3.4. MAKING and HELPING	247
7.3.5. SEEM and MATTER	248
7.4. Complement clauses with Primary-B verbs, and with adjectives	250
7.4.1. ATTENTION	250
7.4.2. THINKING	252
7.4.3. DECIDING	254
7.4.4. SPEAKING	255
7.4.5. LIKING, ANNOYING and adjectives	259
7.4.6. Other Primary-B types	264
Notes to Chapter 7	266
8. I kicked at the bomb, which exploded, and wakened you up
Transitivity and causatives	267
8.1. The semantic basis of syntactic relations	268
8.2. Prepositions and transitivity	270
8.2.1. Verbs with an inherent preposition	271
8.2.2. Phrasal verbs	274
8.2.3. Inserting a preposition	278
8.2.4. Omitting a preposition, before non-measure phrases	281
8.2.5. Omitting a preposition, before measure phrases	285
8.3. Dual transitivity	286
8.3.1. S = A, transitive verbs that can omit an object	287

Contents

8.3.2. S = O pairs, which is basic?	291
8.3.3. Causatives	293
Notes to Chapter 8	297
→ 9. The plate, which had been eaten off, was owned by my aunt
Passives	298
9.1. The nature of passive	299
9.2. Which verbs from Primary types may passivise	305
9.3. How verbs from Secondary types passivise	309
9.4. Complement clauses as passive subjects	313
9.5. Prepositional NPs becoming passive subjects	315
Notes to Chapter 9	320
10. What sells slowly, but wears well?
Promotion to subject	322
10.1 General characteristics	322
10.2 The circumstances in which promotion is possible	325
10.3 Which roles may be promoted	328
Notes to Chapter 10	334
11. She gave him a look, they both had a laugh and then took a stroll
GIVE A VERB, HAVE A VERB and TAKE A VERB constructions	336
11.1. Criteria adopted	339
11.2. Syntax	344
11.3. Meaning	346
11.4. Occurrence	354
Notes to Chapter 11	362
Appendix: List of adjectives and verb types, with sample members	363
References	370
Index	376