

Contents

List of Contributors	ix
1. Introduction	1
2. The Value of Vagueness	14
Timothy Endicott
1. Introduction	14
2. Legal instruments and legal standards	15
3. Varieties of vagueness in legal instruments	17
4. The guidance value and the process value of precision	19
5. Arbitrariness and the normative principle	20
6. The arbitrariness of precision	22
7. Precision can be impossible	24
8. Vague standards delegate power in ways that may comport with the purpose of the law	26
9. Vague standards can encourage desirable forms of private ordering that achieve the law's purposes	27
10. Summary	28
11. Conclusion	29
3. What Vagueness and Inconsistency Tell Us about Interpretation	31
Scott Soames
1. Two kinds of vagueness	31
2. Vagueness and the interpretation of legal, and non-legal, texts	33
3. The value of vagueness	38
4. Consequences for textualism	42
5. Extending the lesson to the resolution of inconsistencies	44
6. A note about legal positivism	51
7. Purpose and normativity	52
4. Vagueness and the Guidance of Action	58
Jeremy Waldron
1. Introduction	58
2. State v Schaeffer	59
3. The model of rules	62

4. The model of standards	63
5. Judgment and guidance	66
6. Raz on authority	67
7. Minimal guidance?	70
8. Thick predicates	72
9. Inchoate rules?	73
10. Chilling behavior	75
11. From traffic to torture	79
12. The lesbian rule	81
5. Can the Law Imply More Than It Says? On Some Pragmatic Aspects of Strategic Speech Andrei Marmor	83
1. The implied content of speech	84
1.1 Implicatures	85
1.2 Presuppositions	87
1.3 Semantically encoded implications	89
2. The normative framework of strategic speech	92
3. Strategic speech in the law	96
6. Textualism and the Discovery of Rights John Perry	105
1. Introduction	105
1.1 Textualism	105
1.2 Discovering rights	109
1.3 Meaning-textualism and the death penalty	111
2. Two models for discovering rights	112
2.1 Preliminaries: meaning, reference, extension, and conception	112
2.2 The Change Model	113
2.3 The Knowledge Model	115
3. Cruel and unusual punishments	116
3.1 Introduction	116
3.2 Cruel punishments	118
4. Moral vision and constitutional interpretation	128
5. Conclusion	129
7. Textualism, Intentionalism, and the Law of the Contract Gideon Rosen	130
1. Jurisprudence as the science of legal effects	130
2. A role for the philosophy of language	131
3. Contract law and the law of the contract	134

4. Gaps, default rules, and unenforceable provisions	135
5. Textualism, hypothetical intentionalism, and the objective theory of contract	138
6. Ambiguity	141
7. Beyond ambiguity: Soper's Estate	147
8. Personal meaning as the ground of contractual obligation	152
9. An alternative account of 'personal meaning'	157
10. Skepticism about plain meaning	159
11. Some conclusions	163
8. Modeling Legal Rules	165
Richard Holton
1. Introduction	165
2. Particularism and rules	166
3. That's it	167
4. Distinguishing, overturning, and other legal actions	171
5. Alternative I: Could legal rules be generics?	173
6. Alternative II: Are legal rules governed by nonmonotonic logic?	176
7. Conclusion	183
9. Trying to Kill the Dead: De Dicto and De Re Intention in Attempted Crimes	184
Gideon Yaffe
1. Introduction	184
2. Background: attempt, intention, and mens rea standards	187
3. The solution	192
3.1 The de dicto and the de re	193
3.2 The commitments constituted by de dicto and de re intentions	198
3.3 The mens rea standard and beliefs about circumstances	201
3.4 Disjunctive descriptions of circumstances	208
3.5 The position in action	212
4. Conclusion	216
10. Legislation as Communication? Legal Interpretation and the Study of Linguistic Communication	217
Mark Greenberg
1. Introduction	217
2. Motivating the communication theory	221
3. Refining the communication theory	226
4. Raising doubts about the communication theory	233

5. Different components and notions of communicative content	241
6. Legislation and communication	250
7. Conclusion	256
Bibliography	257
Legal Citations	265
Index	267