

Contents

Figures	ix
Tables	xiii
Acknowledgments	xv
1 Method and Theory	1
The Use and Development of Ethnoarchaeology	3
Current Intrasite Spatial Studies	6
A Model of the Interrelationship of Culture, Behavior, and Cultural Material	11
Selection of the Ethnographic Study Groups	15
The Ethnographic Research	18
The Archaeological Research	19
2 Individual Ethnographic Residence Descriptions	22
The Navajos	22
The Euroamericans	38
The Spanish-Americans	47
3 Ethnographic Observations on the Usage of Activity Areas	54
Navajo Spatial Patterning	55
Euroamerican Spatial Patterning	102
Spanish-American Spatial Patterning	117
Summary	132
4 The Archaeological Sites	136
Individual Site Descriptions	139
Material Culture, Faunal Remains, and Botanical Remains	156
5 The Testing of a Hypothesis	164
The Problem	164
Artifact Distributions	165
Faunal Remains Distribution	175
6 A Model of the Interrelationship of Culture, Behavior, and Cultural Material	185
The Model	186

The Traditional Hogan: Symbolism and Sacredness	199
The Archaeological Realm of the Model	201
A General Principle Underlying the Continuum	205
Compartmentalization Versus Holism	212
7 Epilogue: Summary and Conclusions	223
Appendixes
1 Examples of the Determination of Confidence Intervals	227
2 Confidence Intervals for the Distribution of Artifact Categories Among Individual Feature Types	228
3 Confidence Intervals for the Distribution of Artifact Categories Within Individual Feature Types	228
4 Chi Square Test for Feature Types and Artifact Categories	232
5 Chi-Square Test for Feature Types and Skeletal Categories	232
References	235
Index	253