

Table of Contents

Foreword	iii
Introduction	vii
Acknowledgments	ix
About the Authors	xi
Exhibits	xvii
Executive Summary	xix
Chapter 1: Introduction	1
The Avraham Y. Goldratt Institute	4
Our study	5
The rest of the book	6
Notes	7
Chapter 2: Theory of Constraints in Theory and in Practice	9
Introduction	9
The effects of excess inventories on operations	9
Throughput Accounting	12
TOC and relevant cost analysis	19
TOC control measures	20
Goldratt's critique of cost accounting	23
TOC priorities	26
The Drum-Buffer-Rope scheduling system	27
Managing nonconstraints	39
Managing constraints—the process of ongoing improvement	42
The Thinking Process—an overview	47
The Thinking Process—our evaluation	52
The Thinking Process—summary	56
Notes	57
	xv

Chapter 3: Case Studies	61
Introduction	61
Baxter—Lessines, Belgium	62
Company J	68
Western Textile Products	80
Samsonite Europe N.V.	97
Company Q	107
Hofmans Forms/Packings	112
Kent Moore Cabinets	125
Notes	135
Chapter 4: Further Observations and Conclusions	137
The Thinking Process	137
Is TOC a “production thing”?	139
TOC and cost cutting	142
TOC versus ABC	143
The floating bottleneck problem	145
Strategic implications of the bottleneck	146
Conclusion	148
Notes	150
Appendix: An Introduction to the Thinking Process	153
Introduction	153
Thinking Process—Current Reality Tree	154
Thinking Process—Evaporating Clouds	164
The Future Reality Tree	171
The Prerequisite Tree	179
The Transition Tree	181
Summary of the Thinking Process	183
Notes	186