

CONTENTS

Foreword .....	ix
Acknowledgments.....	xi
CHAPTER 1: INTRODUCTION.....	1
1. The challenge of other minds .....	1
2. Semiotic approaches to Anglo-Saxon minds.....	1
3. Time as an element in semiotic approaches to Anglo-Saxon minds .....	9
CHAPTER 2: ANGLO-SAXON ROYAL CODES and AUDIENCES .....	11
1. Establishing an audience for the laws of the king.....	11
2. Definitional preliminaries.....	12
3. The problem of “æghwælc mon” in Anglo-Saxon royal codes.....	13
4. Scope and reference in quantifiers.....	14
5. A semiotic tradition in royal codes.....	18
6. Sources of presuppositions for the first law in Alfred’s code.....	24
7. Discussion.....	28
CHAPTER 3: HOMILETIC SPEECH ACTS and INCULCATION.....	31
1. Cultural and clerical contexts .....	31
2. On speech acts as a form of parenthesis .....	34
3. Method.....	35
4. Hallidayan grammar and speech acts .....	39
5. Rhetorical variation.....	54
6. Authorities, witnesses, and speech acts .....	56
7. Form and theme in speech acts.....	59
8. On the need to obey God the Father.....	59
9. Speech acts in the family and community .....	68
10. Conclusion.....	79
CHAPTER 4: THE EXPLORATION of MIND in BEOWULF .....	83
1. Contrasts in directing and exploring minds.....	83
2. Exploratory perspectives on modes of thought and feeling .....	85
3. The sentinel scene .....	91

4. The narrator's perspective on the flyting episode .....	98
5. Succession in hall scenes: Heorot and elsewhere .....	101
6. Consultation in Hygelac's hall and Freawaru's marriage .....	108
7. The tradition of leave-taking scenes .....	113
8. The tradition of the death song .....	117
9. Phrases for the mind of God .....	122
10. Conclusion .....	131
— CHAPTER 5: POEMS for AUDIENCES in CRISIS .....	137
1. Themes on the future in Anglo-Saxon discourse .....	137
2. Discourse and the presuppositions of Anglo-Saxon audiences .....	137
3. The need for discourse on uncertain power and times .....	138
4. Apprehension and discourse in The Battle of Maldon .....	145
5. Apprehension and discourse in three Exeter Book poems .....	157
6. Apprehension in Deor .....	158
7. Apprehension, displacement, and the possibility of deliverance .....	164
8. Apprehension and The Wanderer's form and language .....	165
9. The voice of The Seafarer and eleventh century apprehension .....	169
10. Conclusion .....	173
NOTES .....	177
BIBLIOGRAPHY .....	209
INDEX .....	225