

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Notes on the Contributors	viii
Editors' Introduction	1
1 Contexts Tony Garnett	11
Part I: Production Contexts	25
Editors' Introduction to Part I	27
2 Television Drama Series: a Producer's View Irene Shubik	42
3 TV Drama: Then and Now John McGrath	48
4 Sydney Newman and the 'Golden Age' Shaun Sutton	54
5 The 1970s: Regional Variations Barry Hanson	58
6 Writing Television Drama – Then and Now Andrew Davies	64
7 'The Age of Innocence' Alan Plater	68
8 Playing Shops, Shopping Plays: the Effect of the Internal Market on Television Drama David Edgar	73
Part II: Critical Constructions – Approaches to TV Drama	79
Editors' Introduction to Part II	81
9 Mapping the Terrain: Troy Kennedy Martin's Edge of Darkness John Bull	93

10	 Holding On: Signs of the City – The Motif of the Redemptive Journey in Tony Marchant’s Holding On  Peter Billingham CODA: Tony Marchant, David Snodin (producer,  Holding On , BBC TV) and Michael Wearing (former Head of BBC Drama) discuss  Holding On with Peter Billingham	100
11	‘What Truth is there in this Story?’: the Dramatisation of Northern Ireland  Edward Braun	110
12	The Emancipatory Strategies of Reginald Perrin  Chris Fox	122
13	‘Run Over by One’s Own Story’: Genre and Ethos in Dennis Potter’s  The Singing Detective  Antony Hilfer	133
14	Power Plays: Gender, Genre and Lynda La Plante  Julia Hallam	140
15	Too Secret for Words: Coded Dissent in Female-Authored  Wednesday Plays  Madeleine Macmurrough-Kavanagh	150
16	What do Actors do when they Act?  John Caughie CODA: Timothy West discusses ‘Acting on Stage: Acting on Screen’, followed by extracts from the discussion after his and John Caughie’s presentations	162
17	Multiple Authorship in TV Drama: Trevor Griffiths’s version of  The Cherry Orchard  John Tulloch	175
	Editors’ Conclusion	185
	 Select Bibliography	190
	 Index	194