

CONTENTS

John Gower: Metamorphosis in other words	1
Andrew Marvell: 'Its own resemblance'	34
John Milton: Sound and sense in Paradise Lost	60
Samuel Johnson: Dead metaphors and 'impending death'	80
William Wordsworth 1: 'A pure organic pleasure from the lines'	89
William Wordsworth 2: 'A sinking inward into ourselves from thought to thought'	117
Thomas Lovell Beddoes: 'A dying start'	135
A. E. Housman: The nature of his poetry	163
William Empson: The images and the story	179
Stevie Smith: The art of sinking in poetry	244
Robert Lowell: 'The war of words'	256
Philip Larkin: 'Like something almost being said'	274
Geoffrey Hill 1: 'The tongue's atrocities'	285
Geoffrey Hill 2: At-one-ment	319
Clichés	356
Lies	369
Walter Pater, Matthew Arnold and misquotation	392
American English and the inherently transitory	417
Index	443