

CONTENTS

Preface	ix
Part 1: On the Nature of Interpretation	1
Interpretation	1
Psychoanalysis	4
The Group	7
The Object	11
Literature	15
Part 2: Romanticism and History	19
Narcissism and Contamination: 'Christabel'	19
1789: Rhetoric and Hyperbole	23
The Unification of the Text	27
Desire and Representation: Burke	32
Excesses	36
Fathering the Orphan	40
Adolescence and Transition	44
Humiliation and the Oak	48
Myths of War	52
Keats and the Wound	57
The Wordsworthian Family	62
Part 3: Romanticism and the Self: An Engagement with Blake	68
Problems of Gender	68
Shame and Trauma	73
Repetition and Change: Daughters of Albion	78

viii Contents

The Instituting of Blake	83
Some Dialectics	86
The Wise Man and the Incorporation of the Feminine	90
Haunting	95
Reflexivity	98
Blake and Mysticism	101
Kenosis and the Vortex, Interpretation and Fantasy	104
Some Contexts: Blackwood, Lindsay, Swinburne, Beckett	108
Mysticism and Psychosis: The Dark Dialogue	114
Part 4: Romanticism and the Unconscious	118
Psychoanalysis and the Text	118
Psychoanalysis and Gothic	121
Narrative and Symbolism: Melanie Klein	126
Klein and Gothic	128
Emma, Wuthering Heights and the Family Romance	135
Shelley	139
Repetition Compulsion and the Search for Wisdom: The Wanderer	142
Dealings with the Uncomprehended: The Ancient Mariner	146
Amontillado	150
Berenice and the Pit	154
Silence, Enclosure, Dark Heat	157
Part 5: Romanticism: Some Interpretations	162
Echo and Ruin	162
Locating Romanticism	167
Notes	173
Bibliography of works and editions cited	187
Index	196