

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction	1
1 'Differences that Divide and Bind'	24
Three Guineas Plus: Virginia Woolf and her War Correspondents	27
Sacred and Profane 'Rearguard Actions': Vera Brittain and Stevie Smith	32
'A War of Dogma': Dorothy L. Sayers and Ethel Mannin	38
'The Cost of War': Ourselves and Others	46
2 From Fascism in Britain to World War: Dystopic Warnings	58
Canonizing Dystopias	58
Revising the Genre – Questioning Political Process	63
Storm Jameson and Naomi Mitchison: Local and Global Politics	66
Socialist Aristocrat: Naomi Mitchison	69
A 'Cold Shabby Purgatory': Naomi Mitchison's Vision of British Fascism	72
Storm Jameson: 'Splendid Polemicist'	85
3 Dystopic Visions of Hitler's Victory: 'The Future is Our Business'	104
'Fragments of a Disordered Europe': Storm Jameson's Then We Shall Hear Singing	104
'Deluded By the Nazis': Vita Sackville-West's Grand Canyon	109
The 'Unshakable, Impregnable Empire': Katharine Burdekin's Swastika Night	114
4 No Place Like Home: The British Home Front	127
'Her Broken House'	127
Britannia's 'Oaken Heart': The Village Home Front of Elizabeth Goudge, Virginia Woolf, and Others	130

‘This Shuddering Night’: The London Home Front of Elizabeth Bowen, Marguerite Steen, and Lettice Cooper	147
5 ‘Perpetual Civil War’: Domestic Fictions of Britain’s Fate	167
‘The Borrowed Hearth’: Betty Miller and Elizabeth Taylor	167
Penny Heartbreaks: Resisting Romance Fictions	177
6 Fictions of the European Home Front: Keeping Faith with the Conquered	191
The ‘Sensitive Consciences’ of Stevie Smith, Elizabeth Bowen, and Storm Jameson	197
7 Defending Europe’s Others	216
The Battlegrounds of Phyllis Bottome and Olivia Manning	216
‘Dangerous Unhappy Reality’: Women’s Foreign Intrigues	240
Notes	253
Primary Sources	278
Select Bibliography	285
Index	289