

Contents

	page
Editor's preface	vii
1. Editorial introduction P. J. DRUDY, Trinity College, Dublin	I
2. The importance of agrarian classes: agrarian class structure and collective action in nineteenth-century Ireland SAMUEL CLARK, University of Western Ontario	II
3. Class, family and rural unrest in nineteenth-century Ireland DAVID FITZPATRICK, Trinity College, Dublin	37
4. The Land League ideal: achievements and contradictions PAUL BEW, Queen's University, Belfast	77
5. Shopkeeper-graziers and land agitation in Ireland, 1895-1900 MICHAEL D. HIGGINS and JOHN P. GIBBONS, University College, Galway	93
6. The small community in the Irish political process MART BAX, Free University, Amsterdam	119
7. Peasant models and the understanding of social and cultural change in rural Ireland DAMIAN F. HANNAN, Economic and Social Research Institute, Dublin	141
8. The land question, politics and Irish society, 1922-1960 M. A. G. Ó TUATHAIGH, University College, Galway	167
9. Land, people and the regional problem in Ireland P. J. DRUDY, Trinity College, Dublin	191
10. Land policies and agricultural development P. COMMINS, The Agricultural Institute, Dublin	217

11.	The State and Irish agriculture, 1950–1980 ALAN MATTHEWS, Trinity College, Dublin	241
12.	Political independence, economic growth and the role of economic policy DERMOT MCALEESE, Trinity College, Dublin	271
13.	Urban growth and urban land policy MICHAEL J. BANNON, University College, Dublin	297
	Author index	325
	Subject index	328