

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements xv

Introduction 1

One A New England Called Ireland? 9

IRELAND – ENGLAND'S UNCONSCIOUS?

Interchapter 29

Two Oscar Wilde – The Artist as Irishman 33

Three John Bull's Other Islander – Bernard Shaw 51

ANGLO-IRELAND: THE WOMAN'S PART

Interchapter 67

Four Tragedies of Manners – Somerville and Ross 69

Five Lady Gregory and the Empire Boys 83

YEATS: LOOKING INTO THE LION'S FACE

Interchapter 99

Six Childhood and Ireland 101

Seven The National Longing for Form 115

RETURN TO THE SOURCE?

Interchapter 133

Eight Deanglicization 136

- Nine* Nationality or Cosmopolitanism? 155
Ten J. M. Synge – Remembering the Future 166

REVOLUTION AND WAR

- Interchapter 191
Eleven Uprising 196
Twelve The Plebeians Revise the Uprising 218
Thirteen The Great War and Irish Memory 239

WORLDS APART?

- Fourteen* Ireland and the End of Empire 251

INVENTING IRELANDS

- Interchapter 263
Fifteen Writing Ireland, Reading England 268
Sixteen Inventing Irelands 286
Seventeen Revolt Into Style – Yeatsian Poetics 305
Eighteen The Last Aisling – A Vision 316
Nineteen James Joyce and Mythic Realism 327

SEXUAL POLITICS

- Interchapter 359
Twenty Elizabeth Bowen – The Dandy in Revolt 364
Twenty-One Fathers and Sons 380
Twenty-Two Mothers and Daughters 395

PROTESTANT REVIVALS

- Interchapter 413
Twenty-Three Protholics and Cathestants 418
Twenty-Four Saint Joan – Fabian Feminist, Protestant Mystic 428
Twenty-Five The Winding Stair 438
Twenty-Six Religious Writing: Beckett and Others 454

UNDERDEVELOPMENT

- Interchapter 471
- Twenty-Seven* The Periphery and the Centre 481
- Twenty-Eight* Flann O'Brien, Myles, and The Poor Mouth 497
- Twenty-Nine* The Empire Writes Back – Brendan Behan 513
- Thirty* Beckett's Texts of Laughter and Forgetting 530
- Thirty-One* Post-Colonial Ireland – "A Quaking Sod" 551

RECOVERY AND RENEWAL

- Interchapter 565
- Thirty-Two* Under Pressure – The Writer and Society 1960–90 580
- Thirty-Three* Friel Translating 614
- Thirty-Four* Translating Tradition 624

REINVENTING IRELAND

- Thirty-Five* Imagining Irish Studies 641

Notes 655

Index 701