

Contents

|                                                                                |                  |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------|
| List of Illustrations                                                   | page viii |
| Acknowledgments                                                         | ix               |
| Introduction: Shell Shock and the World War I Novel                            | I                |
| PART I INVISIBLE WOUNDS AND NARRATIVE RETURNS                                  | 21               |
| 1 Faces of Battle in Mrs. Humphry Ward's Wartime Writing                       | 23               |
| 2 "Not Yet Diagnosed Nervous": Ford Madox Ford's Parade's End Tetralogy | 52               |
| PART II FRACTURED IDENTITIES AND FORGOTTEN HISTORIES                           | 81               |
| 3 No Separate Peace: A Farewell to Arms as Trauma Narrative             | 83               |
| 4 "Belated Impress": River George and African American Shell Shock      | III              |
| PART III TROUBLING MEN AND MEMORIAL FICTIONS                                   | 141              |
| 5 Sepoy Shell Shock, Mulk Raj Anand, and the Indian World War I Novel          | 143              |
| 6 Traumatic Topographies in Tender Is the Night                         | 172              |
| Coda: Queer World War I: Isherwood and Shell Shock Sexualities                 | 201              |
| Notes                                                                   | 215              |
| Bibliography                                                            | 222              |
| Index                                                                   | 241              |