

Contents

Preface	vi
1 The Example of Amos Tutuola: Accidental Artist or Really Writer?	1
2 'Talking with Paper' is Only the Beginning	26
Onitsha Market Literature /29 Audience /36
Language /39 Economics /44
Appropriation and other impediments /48
3 African Writers and the Quest for Publication	54
Cyprian Ekwensi (Nigeria) /64 Similih M. Cordon
(Liberia) /69 Véronique Tadjó (Ivory Coast) /74
Elinor Sisulu (Zimbabwe/South Africa) /78
Yvonne Vera (Zimbabwe) /82
4 African Publishers, African Publishing	93
The Zimbabwe International Book Fair /94
Publishing in Kenya /101 The African bestseller? /105
Baobab Books /109
5 'The Horror, the Horror'	114
Camara Laye: death of the artist /116 Censorship /121
Imprisonment /127 Exile /136 The death of Ken
Saro-Wiwa /140
Conclusion: The Crisis in African Writing	146
Works Cited	156
Index	162