

Contents

Acknowledgements	page vii
Contributors	ix
Introduction
Writing India, reorienting colonial discourse analysis BART MOORE-GILBERT	1
1 'The Fearful Name of the Black Hole': fashioning an imperial myth KATE TELTSCHER	30
2 Towards an Anglo-Indian poetry? The colonial muse in the writings of John Leyden, Thomas Medwin and Charles D'Oyly NIGEL LEASK	52
3 Meadows Taylor's Confessions of a Thug : the Anglo- Indian novel as a genre in the making JAVED MAJEED	86
4 'The Bhabhal of Tongues': reading Kipling, reading Bhabha BART MOORE-GILBERT	111
5 Secrets of the colonial harem: gender, sexuality, and the law in Kipling's novels NANCY L. PAXTON	139
6 Married to the empire: the Anglo-Indian domestic novel ALISON SAINSBURY	163

7 Volatile desire: ambivalence and distress in Forster's colonial narratives CHRISTOPHER LANE	188
8 'I am your Mother and your Father': Paul Scott's Raj Quartet and the dissolution of imperial identity DANNY COLWELL	213
9 Salman Rushdie: from colonial politics to postmodern poetics TIM PARNELL	236
Index	263