
Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction. The Two Cycles of Irish-American Fiction	1
1. Backgrounds and a Habit of Satire	6
2. The Profession of Novelist: James McHenry and Charles Cannon	39
3. The Famine Generation: Practical Fiction for Immigrants	72
4. Mrs. Sadlier and Father Quigley	114
5. Respectability and Realism: Ambivalent Fictions	153
6. Mr. Egan and Mr. Dooley	198
7. A Generation Lost	238
8. James T. Farrell and Irish-American Fiction	257
9. Regional Realists of the Thirties and Forties	292
10. "These Traits Endure": The Irish Voice in Recent American Fiction	312
Notes	358
Works Cited	375
Index	393