

CONTENTS

Preface xiii

A Note on the Terminology and Illustrations xix

Introduction: Strange Communists I Have Known 1

Chapter 1. American Jeremiad 9

Recording Angel 9

Shakespeare in Overalls 15

Poems for Workers 18

"Write It Plain" 28

Revolutionary Romanticism 33

Chapter 2. Inventing Mike Gold 39

"A Kind of Cheeky Crazy Kat" 39

"By Street Life and Thunder" 42

Poverty Is a Trap 45

Meyerhold in Harlem 50

The Van Gogh of a Darker Time 55

The Gold Standard 61

Chapter 3. The Great Promise 71

Living in a "State of Emergency" 71

"Waiting for Trachty" 76

The Black Cultural Front 80

African Americans and the John Reed Clubs 84

Gender and Party Commitment 95

Chapter 4. The New Masses and the Social Muse 103

"Bloody Anarchists" 103

Becoming a Weekly 108

Portrait of a New Masses Literary Editor 112

Poetry and the Popular Front 119

The Last Refuge 127

Chapter 5. Yogis and Commissars	163
Love and Revolution	163
A Pen Dripped in Vitriol	166
The St. Augustine of Communism	171
The Red Valentino	178
A Divided Life	185
The Dream with the Changing Name	190
Chapter 6. Three Moderns in Search of an Answer	193
The Modernist Temptation	193
Bastard in the Ragged Suit	198
Apollinaire of the Proletariat	204
Byron of the Poolhalls	214
Chapter 7. Sappho in Red	229
Loyalties	229
The Rational Ecologist	234
Waltzing Mouse	238
And God Came In	244
The Apostate	247
The Premature Socialist-Feminists	252
Chapter 8. Black Marxists in White America	263
Transcending Narrow Nationalisms	263
New Challenges	267
“New” and “Newer” Negroes	276
Between Class and Nationality	279
From Banjo to Melody	291
Conclusion: The Antinomies of a Proletarian Avant-garde	299
Flights and Moorings	299
A Social Poet’s Progress	306
Poets and Criminals	316
Chronology of the Mid-Twentieth-Century Cultural Left	327
Notes	331
Acknowledgments and Sources	393
Index	399