

Contents

Introduction	11
---------------------	----

I

Destruction and Renewal: The Apocalyptic Imagination in America	21
--	----

- 1: 'The End' of the New World: "The Beginning of This Great Work of God Must Be Near" 23
- 2: 'The End' in Classic American Literature:
"What's That About the Apocalypse?" 28
- 3: The Contemporary Fascination with 'The End': "These Dread Latter Days of the Old Violent Beloved U.S.A." 36

II

Exploring the Post-Apocalypse: Bernard Malamud's God's Grace	45
--	----

- 1: Old Stories and New Perceptions: "The Thermonuclear War Between the Djanks and Drushkies" 49
- 2: A Playful Deconstruction of the Book of Genesis:
"Do You See Yourself as Adam?" 53
- 3: Intertextual Games with World Literature:
"Sholl I Call You Moster?" 63

-
- | | |
|---|----|
| 4: An Allegory of Jews and Christians:
"It's Another Modality" | 66 |
| 5: Creation vs. Evolution: "Nobody Seemed to Know Where George's Name Came from" | 73 |
| 6: The Powers and Limitations of Story-Telling:
"The Word Began the World" | 79 |
| 7: The Humanist's Hopeless Hope: "Blaming
Man Gets You Nowhere" | 86 |

III

- | | |
|--|-----------|
| Entropy: The Development of a Scientific
Concept and Its Changing Cultural Contexts | 91 |
| 1: From Sadi Carnot to Rudolf Julius Emanuel Clausius:
The Discovery of the Second Law of Thermodynamics | 93 |
| 2: Hermann von Helmholtz:
The 'Heat-Death' of the Universe | 99 |
| 3: James Clerk Maxwell's Sorting Demon:
A Refutation of the Second Law? | 105 |
| 4: Ludwig Boltzmann: From Macroscopic Thermodynamics to Statistical Mechanics | 108 |
| 5: From Herbert Spencer and Friedrich Nietzsche to Henri
Bergson and Sigmund Freud: Resistance and Adoption | 112 |
| 6: From William Ralph Inge to Pope Pius XII:
The Theological Controversies | 119 |
| 7: From Walther Hermann Nernst to E. A. Milne: The
Third Law and New Doubts About the Second | 128 |

8: From Charles Dickens to Michel Serres: Uncharted Passages Between Science and Literature	136
9: Felix Auerbach, Wilhelm Ostwald, and Friedrich Engels: Entropy in 'Energetics' and Materialism	148
10: From H. G. Wells to Gustav Sack and Yevgeny Zamyatin: Resignation and Resistance	154
11: Henry Adams: The History of Degradation and the Degradation of History	164
12: Nathanael West and F. Scott Fitzgerald: "A Tropism for Disorder, Entropy"	171
13: From Leo Szilard to Charles H. Bennett: Maxwell's Demon Exorcised	176
14: Claude E. Shannon: Communication Theory and the Introduction of Informational Entropy	186
15: Norbert Wiener: Cybernetics and the Popularization of the New Entropy Concept	190
16: Thermodynamic and Informational Entropy: Analogy, Isomorphism, or Identity?	197
17: Claude E. Shannon vs. Leon Brillouin: Two Conflicting Versions of Informational Entropy	202
18: Rudolf Arnheim and Others: The Uselessness of 'Information' Without 'Meaning'	209
19: From Sir Arthur Eddington to Stephen W. Hawking: "The Arrow of Time"	218
20: Nicholas Georgescu-Roegen: The Entropy Law as the Taproot of Economic Scarcity	224

21: Jeremy Rifkin: The Entropy Law as the Paradigm for the Next Period of History	231
22: Ilya Prigogine: Order Out of Chaos by Means of "Dissipative Structures"	234
23: Lila L. Gatlin's D_1 and D_2 : Two Kinds of Entropy in Genetics	246
24: From Ludwig von Bertalanffy to James Lovelock: New Aspects of Entropy in System Theory	251
25: From the 'Butterfly Effect' to Jurassic Park: Order and Disorder in Chaos Theory	265
26: Instead of a Summary: Tom Stoppard's Arcadia	280

IV

From a memento mori to the Promise of New Order: Entropy in Post-War American Fiction	293
1: Forbidding and Fascinating Alike: 'Entropy' as a Many-Sided Metaphor	297
2: Thermodynamics in Literary Theory: The Death of Tragedy and the Comedy of Entropy	303
3: Between Useful Paradigm and Faddish Label: Entropy in Literary Criticism	307
4: Humpty Dumpty's Postlapsarian Inheritors: 'Entropy' in Recent American Fiction	328
5: John Updike: From "the Physical Theory of Entropia" to "Life's Constant Depreciation"	339

-
- 6: Ken Kesey: From Entropic Decay to "the Cognitive Process of Modern Civilization" 368
- 7: Stanley Elkin: "Your Energy" Against My Entropy" 383
- 8: George P. Elliot and Susan Sontag: The "Delinquent Running-Down of Everything" 388
- 9: Science Fiction from George Alec Effinger to Bruce Sterling: From Entropy to "Prigoginic Leaps" 395
- 10: Thomas Pynchon: "The Entropies of Lovable but Scatter-brained Mother Nature" as "an Adequate Metaphor"? 410
- 11: Donald Barthelme: "On the Leading Edge of This Trash Phenomenon" 432
- 12: William Gaddis: "God Damned Much Entropy Going on" 436
- 13: Bret Easton Ellis: "I Could See the Whole World Melt" 452
- 14: Don DeLillo: The "Incessant Bombardment of Information" 459
- 15: Russell Banks: "Just to Go on, with Entropy Lurking Out There" 475
- 16: Charles Bowden: From "Lord Kelvin's Laws of Thermodynamics" to "the Voluptuous Crotch of Absolute Entropy" 480
- 17: "Leave It to Americans to Write 'The End'" 490

V

The Entropic End of the American Dream: Thomas Pynchon's The Crying of Lot 49	493
1: The Complex Interplay of Three Levels, or "We Are Digits in God's Computer"	496
2: The Quest for the Self and the World, or "the Hieroglyphic Sense of Concealed Meaning"	500
3: The Dire Future of the American Dream, or "All This Passion Toward Conformity"	513
4: The Threat of Thermodynamic and Informational Entropy, or the Impossibility of "Sorting It All Out"	520
5: The Choice Between Perception and Paranoia, or the "High Magic to Low Puns"	551
Bibliography	561
Index	599