

CONTENTS

PREFACE	x1
I. THE DRAMA AND THE THEATRE IN THE COLONIES	1
Social conditions and the drama. The two influences, professional and amateur, which inspired the first American playwright. The beginning of the theatre in Virginia, New York, Charleston, and Philadelphia. Hallam brings the American Company to Williamsburg. The first permanent theatre, in Philadelphia. Godfrey's Prince of Parthia , the first American play, produced there in 1767. Amateur plays at the College of Philadelphia and their influence on Godfrey. His sources in English playwriting. Other dramas of the period. Congress stops the players.
II. THE DRAMA OF THE REVOLUTION	33
Whig and Tory use the drama. Mercy Warren pillories the Tories in Boston. Burgoyne and The Blockheads . The Fall of British Tyranny in Philadelphia. Bunker's Hill on the amateur stage in Maryland. The Patriots attacks intolerance in Virginia. The Tories reply in New York and New England. The significance of this drama as social history.
III. THE COMING OF COMEDY	61
Peace brings back the theatre. Patriotic spectacles and the college drama. Social satire. Royall Tyler's The Contrast , the first comedy, played in New York in 1787. National sincerity contrasted with the aping of foreign customs. Its models in English comedy. Tyler's other plays.
IV. WILLIAM DUNLAP, PLAYWRIGHT AND PRODUCER	74
Dunlap's preparation and inspiration. His plays written for the American Company. The Father and Leicester ; comedy and tragedy. Early dramatic criticism. Dunlap as a manager. His adaptations from the French. Opening of the Park Theatre. André . Washington on the stage. Adaptations from the German domestic drama. Its roots in England. The Italian Father . The French mélodrame . Bankruptcy and retirement. Assistant manager under Cooper. The last of the old American Company. Dunlap the painter. Later playwriting. The History of the American Theatre . His achievement.

CONTENTS

- V. TRAGEDY AND POLITICS, 1788-1805 113
Romantic tragedy in Philadelphia, Boston, and New York. Humphreys, W. C. White, E. H. Smith, Ingersoll, Burk. Plays on national themes. Mrs. Rowson, Murdock. The Quaker on the stage. First native negro character. International conflicts in the drama. Washington defended on the stage. Bunker Hill. Staging of patriotic spectacles. Federalist and Anti-Federalist. The Essex Junto and Federalism Triumphant. Early farces.
- VI. JAMES NELSON BARKER AND THE NATIVE PLAYS, 1805-1825 136
The man of affairs as a playwright. The Indian Princess, on the Pocahontas theme. First original American play to be performed in London. Marmion and the War of 1812. Superstition, a tragedy of Puritan intolerance. M. M. Noah's patriotic plays. The Mediterranean pirates on the stage. Plays of the Revolution. Woodworth's The Widow's Son. The Lafayette plays. Comedy. Yankee parts. Farces. Difficulties of the native dramatist. Foreign competition. Shakespeare on the American stage.
- VII. JOHN HOWARD PAYNE AND THE FOREIGN PLAYS, 1805-1825 163
The actor playwright. Payne's training on the American stage. Julia, his first play. Début at Drury Lane. Adaptations from the French mélodrame. Difficulties with the managers. Brutus and its sources. Payne's skill as an adaptor of earlier plays. Thérèse. Clari and "Home, Sweet Home." Irving's collaboration in Charles II and Richelieu. Their sources. Payne's return to America. His position in our dramatic history. The Charleston group of playwrights. William Ioor, J. B. White, Isaac Harby. Romantic plays. Noah's plays on foreign themes. Neal, Hutton, Turnbull. Melodrama.
- VIII. FROM MELODRAMA TO TRAGEDY 199
Social and theatrical changes. New theatres in New York. Passing of theatrical leadership from Philadelphia to New York. Foreign stars in New York and native playwrights in Philadelphia. Influence of Edwin Forrest and J. H. Hackett. R. Penn Smith, a typical playwright of transition. His patriotic plays. The Triumph at Plattsburg. Melodrama from France. His verse play, The Deformed. His tragedy, Caius Marius. His domestic drama. His adaptation of Victor Hugo in The Actress of Padua.

CONTENTS

IX. ROBERT MONTGOMERY BIRD AND THE RISE OF THE ROMANTIC PLAY, 1825-1850 220

The romantic revival in France and America. Bird's early plays. Pelopidas. The Gladiator, for Forrest. Its sources and motives. Its reception at home and abroad. Long stage life. Oralloossa. The Broker of Bogota. Its artistic success. Forrest's treatment of Bird. Bird's withdrawal from the stage. Publication of the plays prevented by Forrest. The Philadelphia group of playwrights. McHenry, Brown, Stone. Conrad's Jack Cade. Drama in New York. Bailey, Mrs. Ellet. Willis's Tortosa. Octavia Bragaldi, a Kentucky tragedy transferred to Milan. Epes Sargent in Boston. Velasco in London. Romantic plays in the South. Bannister, Miles. Closet plays. The Spanish Student. National motives in foreign themes.

X. AMERICAN HISTORY ON THE STAGE, 1825-1860 269

Indian Plays. Custis's Indian Prophecy. Stone's Metamora, for Forrest. The Pocahontas plays. Plays of Colonial life. Mathews' Witchcraft. Vogue of the dramas of the Revolution. The Arnold-André motive. Bunce's Love in '76. Plays of the War of 1812. Dramatization of contemporary events. Anti-Masonic agitation. Boundary disputes. Whigs and Democrats. War with Mexico. The Mormons. California Plays. Abolition. Uncle Tom's Cabin. Trowbridge's Neighbor Jackwood.

XI. AMERICAN COMEDY TYPES, 1825-1860 292

Plays of the frontier. Paulding's Lion of the West. The Yankee Plays. Woodworth's Forest Rose. Jonathan in England. J. S. Jones's The People's Lawyer and his analysis of the dramatic situation. Realistic plays of city life. Sources of the type. A Glance at New York. Vogue of the fireman plays. Social satires. Mrs. Mowatt's Fashion. Her stage career. Her imitators. Nature's Nobleman. Self. Americans in Paris. Romantic comedy. Lester Wallack's Veteran. Mingling of the types. Domestic drama. The development of Rip Van Winkle. The negro on the stage. Significance of the comedy types in the growth of stage realism.

XII. GEORGE HENRY BOKER AND THE LATER ROMANTIC TRAGEDY 337

The tragedy of the patrician. Boker as a practical playwright. His choice of Spanish and Italian themes. Calaynos in London.

CONTENTS

Anne Boleyn. Romantic comedy, The Betrothal. The World a Mask, a social satire. Julia Dean in Leonor de Guzman and The Bankrupt. Davenport in Francesca da Rimini. Its revivals by Lawrence Barrett and Otis Skinner. The story in literature. Boker's originality and his interpretation of character. His mastery of blank verse. Career as a patriot and a diplomat. His later plays, Nydia and Glaucus. Mrs. Howe's Leonora at Wallack's Theatre. Temporary renaissance of the literary drama on the stage. The progress from the Prince of Parthia to Francesca da Rimini.

XIII. THE INFLUENCE OF DION BOUCICAULT . . . 368

Boucicault comes to America. Copyright. His plays produced here. The Poor of New York. Jessie Brown. The Octoroon. Skillful use of his sources. Interpretation of Irish character in The Colleen Bawn. Earlier Irish plays and their artificial nature. Boucicault's reality of treatment. Visit to England. Return to America. The O'Dowd. Belle Lamar, a Civil War play. The Shaughran. Later plays. Boucicault's invention of the traveling company with one play. Its effect on the dramatist. Economic changes which aided this effect. The Civil War. Moral attitude toward the theatre. The end of an era. Its relations with the future and its own significance.

BIBLIOGRAPHY 395

A LIST OF AMERICAN PLAYS, 1665-1860 425

INDEX 501