

CONTENTS

Introduction: A Highway through the Wilderness of Post-Reconstruction 3

1. Maternal Discourses as Antebellum Social Protest 23

The Kitchen Politics of Abolitionism 23

Politicizing the Black Mother's Voice 26

2. Legacies of Intersecting Cultural Conventions 51

Antebellum Gender Constructions of the Black Female 52

Gentility, Color, and Social Mobility 59

The Pedagogy of Sentimental Literature 64

Male and Female Generic Narratives of Racial Protest 67

3. To Vote and to Marry: Locating a Gendered and Historicized
Model of Interpretation 70

A Modern Paradigm: Antagonistic Discourses of Marriage and Freedom 71

Twentieth-Century Critical Imperatives 78

The Aesthetic of Race Literature 83

Interpretative Model: Domestic Desire as Political Discourse 87

4. Allegories of Gender and Class as Discourses of Political Desire 97

*The Intended Readers of Black Women's Post-Reconstruction
Domestic Novels* 102

The Politics of Desire 104

- Domestic Narrative as Racial Discourse* 109
The Heroine as Agent of Racial Desire 121
5. Sexual Discourses of Political Reform of the Post-Reconstruction Era 124
- (Black) Manhood and Womanhood as Racial and Political Signifiers of Citizenship* 128
Literary Interventionism 134
The Domestic Heroine and Black Bourgeois Individuation 138
Centering the Heroine's Virtue 144
6. Revising the Patriarchal Texts of Husband and Wife in Real and Fictive Worlds 150
- Gender Rites and the Higher Education of Black Women* 151
Gender Rites and Fictive Texts 160
Love as a Strategy for Revising Spousal Roles 166
7. From Domestic Happiness to Racial Despair 180
- The Heroine's Work* 180
Black Heroines, the Racial Discourse, Formula Novels, and the Test of True Love 193
8. Domestic Tragedy as Racial Protest 209
- Notes 231
Selected Bibliography 281
Index 291