

Table of contents

Acknowledgments xi

Introduction 1

CHAPTER 1

Identity in narrative: A discourse approach 11

1. Narrative genre and types of narratives 11
2. Identity and narrative 15
3. Local and global contexts 26

CHAPTER 2

The social phenomenon: Mexican migration to the U.S. 31

1. Mexican undocumented immigrants to the United States 31
 - 1.1 Number and origin of Mexican undocumented workers in the U.S. 32
 - 1.2 Reasons for migrating and sociocultural characteristics of Mexican immigrants 34
 - 1.3 The migration process 35
2. The subjects of the study 36
 - 2.1 Life in the United States 40
3. The Intertextual domain: Public discourse on immigration 42
4. Notes on methodology and data 45
 - 4.1 The interviews 45
 - 4.2 Data selection and transcription 48

CHAPTER 3

Identity as social orientation: Pronominal choice 51

1. Pronominal choice and speaker-orientation 52
2. Pronominal choice and cultural conceptions of the self 54
3. Personal and collective protagonists in narratives of personal experience 56

4. Pronominal distribution in story clauses 66
5. Pronominal switches and repair 70
6. Depersonalization in stories: From yo to uno and tu 79
7. Generalization of experience and story codas 84
8. Conclusions 89

CHAPTER 4

Identity as agency: Dialogue and action in narrative 93

1. Reported speech in narrative 93
2. Chronicles as a type of narrative 98
3. Crossing the border 101
4. Reported speech in the chronicles 104
5. Coding of reported speech acts 106
6. Analysis: Individual chronicles 112
 - 6.1 Reported speech and power 116
 - 6.2 Interactional positioning 122
7. Analysis: Collective chronicles 125
8. Discussion 134
9. Conclusions 138

CHAPTER 5

Identity as categorization: Identification strategies 139

1. Categories of identification: Ethnicity 141
2. Immigrants and social practices of categorization 143
3. Functions of orientation and detail in stories 146
4. Interactional world relevance of ethnic descriptions 150
5. Story world relevance of ethnic identifications 165
6. Irrelevant mentions? 169
7. Ethnic identities in interactional and story-world contexts 177
8. Conclusions 179

CHAPTER 6

Identity as social representation: Negotiating affiliations 181

1. Ethnicity: Some definitions 182
2. Identity as representation 184
3. Being Hispanic in different story worlds: The chronicles 185
4. Being Hispanic in different story worlds: Experiences after settlement 202
5. Conclusions 215

CHAPTER 7

Conclusions	217
1. Social roles, agency and membership into communities	217
2. Storytelling, discourse, identity	220
3. Concluding remarks and perspectives for future research	223

APPENDIX 1

Interview log	225
----------------------	------------

APPENDIX 2

Transcription conventions	229
----------------------------------	------------

Notes	231
--------------	------------

Bibliography	237
---------------------	------------

Index	249
--------------	------------