

Contents

Series Foreword vii

Preface ix

1 | The Zombic Hunch: Extinction of an Intuition? 1

- 1 The Naturalistic Turn 1
- 2 The Reactionaries 8
- 3 An Embarrassment of Zombies 13
- 4 Broad Functionalism and Minimalism 17
- 5 The Future of an Illusion 22

2 | A Third-Person Approach to Consciousness 25

- 1 Scientists from Mars 25
- 2 Folk Theories and Philosophy 31
- 3 Heterophenomenology Revisited 35
- 4 David Chalmers as Heterophenomenological Subject 47
- 5 The Second-Person Point of View 49

3 | Explaining the “Magic” of Consciousness 57

- 1 The Thankless Task of Explaining Magic 58
- 2 Dismantling the Audience 69
- 3 The Tuned Deck 72

4	 	Are Qualia What Make Life Worth Living?	77
		1 The Quale, An Elusive Quarry	77
		2 Change Blindness and a Question about Qualia	82
		3 Sweet Dreams and the Nightmare of Mr. Clapgras	91
5	 	What RoboMary Knows	103
		1 Mary and the Blue Banana	104
		2 "Surely" She'll Be Surprised	107
		3 You Had to Be There!	116
		4 RoboMary	122
		5 Locked RoboMary	126
6	 	Are We Explaining Consciousness Yet?	131
		1 Clawing Our Way toward Consensus	131
		2 Competition for Clout	136
		3 Is There Also a Hard Problem?	143
		4 But What about "Qualia"?	151
		5 Conclusion	157
7	 	A Fantasy Echo Theory of Consciousness	159
		1 Fleeting Fame	160
		2 Instant Replay	167
8	 	Consciousness: How Much Is That in Real Money?	173
		References	179
		Index	189