

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction	1
1 Background	1
2 Rationale	2
3 Synopsis	4
4 Precedents and Trends	8
PART ONE
I Conceptual Thinking and Philosophical Disagreement	13
1 Understanding and the Search for Pattern	13
2 Conceptual Structures and Understanding	14
3 Root Models	15
4 Conceptual Relativity	17
5 Adequacy and Explanation	19
6 Incompatibility	21
7 Redundancy	22
II Two Incompatible Models of Persons	27
1 The Orthodox Model: The Ontology of Common Sense	27
2 The Physicalist Model: The Ontology of Physicalism	29
3 The Viability of the Physicalist Model	34
4 Consequences of Physicalism	39
PART TWO
III The Mental and the Physical	45
1 Cartesian Dualism	45
2 The Central Mind-Brain Puzzle	46
3 The Mind-Brain Identity Theory	50

Contents

4	Evidence for Identity Theory	50
5	Scientific Evidence Relating the Mental and the Physical	53
6	Eidescopic Shifts and Physicalism	60
7	Recapitulation and Orientation	61
IV	Mind–Brain Identity Theory	63
1	Precedents	63
2	Recent Formulations	64
3	Biperspectivism	72
4	Some Aspects of the Physicalist Model of the Mental	82
V	Objections to Mind–Brain Identity Theory	102
1	Solved Problems	102
2	Logical Objections	104
3	Scientific–Empirical Objections	124
4	Epistemological Objections	140
5	Summary	157
PART THREE
VI	Causal Necessity	161
1	Introduction	161
2	Concepts	162
3	Hume's View of Causes	163
4	The Physicalist View of Causes and Causality	178
5	Summary and Conclusions	197
VII	Human Action	199
1	Introduction	199
2	Explanation of Actions	200
3	The Concept of Persons as Primitive Entities	202
4	Actions of Agents: The Orthodox Account	204
5	The Incoherence of the Orthodox Account	206
6	The Spurious Coherence of the Orthodox Account	216
7	The Causal Account of Human Action	218
8	Physicalist Resolution of Orthodox Incoherencies	235
9	Summary and Conclusions	238
PART FOUR
VIII	Free-Will and Determinism	243
1	Introduction	243
2	The Free-Will Problem	245
3	Three Positions	245

Contents

4	Compatibilism	246
5	Physical Determinism	246
6	Libertarianism	250
7	Summary and Conclusions	270
IX	Moral Responsibility	272
1	The Problem	272
2	The Nature of the Incompatibility	275
3	Consequences	277
4	Summary and Conclusions	290
PART FIVE
X	Physicalism and Jurisprudence	295
1	Introduction	295
2	The State of the Law	296
3	Root Model Conflict	297
4	Analytical Isolation of Participant and Objective Perspectives	299
5	Eidescopic Shifts	301
6	Conclusions	302
XI	The Reasonable Man	304
1	Introduction	304
2	The Reasonable Man Criterion	308
3	The Objective Test	315
4	The Subjective Test	320
5	Summary and Conclusions	326
XII	Crime Disease and Maladjustment	329
1	Introduction	329
2	The Case for Crime as Disease	329
3	Objections to the Thesis that Crime is Disease	331
4	Crime as Maladjustment	343
5	Objections to the Maladjustment View	349
6	Summary and Conclusions	353
XIII	The Mental as Physical: Conclusions	355
	Notes and References	359
	Bibliography	394
	Index	429