

Contents

| | |
|---|------|
| Figures | ix |
| Tables | xi |
| Preface: Employment realities for foreigners of Japanese descent and public indifference | xiii |
| Part I: An Examination of the Logic of Obtaining People Who Transgress National Borders | |
| 1 Globalisation and reform of the labour market: the peripheral work perspective | 3 |
| 2 Broker sociology: pinpoint immigration and 'regional labour markets' | 19 |
| 3 Changes in the structure of employment and foreign workers: labour market and lifestyle complementarity | 38 |
| 4 Reasons for segmentation of the foreign worker labour market: strategic complementarity and the logic of systematisation | 74 |
| 5 Foreign workers inside industrial organisations: a Game Theory approach | 95 |
| Part II: Transnational Workers and Japan | |
| 6 The contract age and workers of Japanese descent: foreign workers and the reorganisation of the peripheral labour market | 115 |
| 7 Globalisation, economic reorganisation and local labour markets: peripheral labour competition in the automobile industry | 134 |
| 8 The labour market for Brazilians living in Japan: service contracting companies and Brazilian workers | 164 |
| 9 Microanalysis of the labour market for people of Japanese descent | 190 |

| | |
|--|-----|
| Part III: The Divisions Between the Economic System and Legal Society Concerning Transnational Persons | |
| 10 An integrated migrant worker industry: changes in travel agencies and capital accumulation in Japanese- descent communities in Brazil | 221 |
| 11 Socio-legal study of special permission to stay in Japan: legal foundations of foreigners living in Japan | 245 |
| 12 Japanese citizenship and Japanese descent: boundaries and the significance of connecting to the first Japanese | 292 |
| Endnotes | 314 |
| Bibliography | 344 |
| Name Index | 369 |
| Subject Index | 371 |