

.....

Contents

.....

List of Illustrations	xi
List of Tables	xv
List of Abbreviations	xvii
Prologue	xix
Introduction	1
Segmented Democratic Representation in Unequal Societies	3
Why Segmented Representation Matters for Redistribution and for Party System Change	8
Research Design	12
Case Selection	12
Multi-level Research Design: Paired District Comparison	14
Tools for Observing and Analyzing Different Types of Linkages	15
Plan of the Book	15
Part I: Descriptive Inference
1. Segmented Electoral Appeals: A Descriptive Framework	21
Towards an Adapted Framework	22
Types of Party-Voter Linkages: A Minimal Definition	23
Party-Voter Linkages and the Assumption of Trade-Offs	29
The Structure of Segmentation	32
Party-Voter Linkage Types and Strategic Harmonization	34
Segmentation and Harmonization of Electoral Appeals	41
Operationalization and Identification Strategy: Mapping Segmented Linkages	45
Level of Analysis: System or Individual Parties?	45
Unit of Observation and Units of Analysis	47
Recovering Historical Patterns of Segmentation and             Harmonization (Independence to 1973)	48
Observing Socioeconomic Segmentation at the Aggregate             Level in the Contemporary Period	48
Observing Territorial and Socioeconomic Segmentation at             the District Level	50
Observing Party Strategies	52

Observing Structures of Segmentation in Other Cases	52
Summary of the Operationalization Strategy for Measuring the Dependent Variable	53
Causes of Party–Voter Linkage Types: Available Arguments	53
Causes of Different Types of Linkages and Structures of Segmentation	59
Which Types of Linkages and What Degree of Segmentation Are Observed in the System?	60
Is Segmentation Mixed or Dual?	62
Can Parties Strategically Harmonize Segmented Appeals?	63
Expected types of Causation and Hypothesized Causal Configurations Across Cases	66
2. Patterns of Party–Voter Linkages in Chile and Uruguay: A Stylized Description of the Pre-1973 and Post-Transitional Periods	70
Introduction	70
The Chilean and Uruguayan Pre-Authoritarian Party Systems	71
A General Characterization of the Chilean Party System	71
A General Characterization of the Uruguayan Party System	72
Applying the Analytical Framework to the Pre-Authoritarian Party Systems	75
The Historical Configuration of Party–Voter Linkages in Chile and Uruguay	83
Party–Voter Linkages in Post-Authoritarian Chile and Uruguay, 1990–2010	83
Post-Transitional Party–Voter Linkages in Chile	85
Post-Transitional Party–Voter Linkages in Uruguay	86
Applying the Analytical Framework to Post-Transitional Party Systems	88
Recent Evolution of the Two-Party Systems	94
Chile’s Bureaucratic-Authoritarian Regime (1973–1989)	94
Uruguay: The Bureaucratic-Authoritarian (BA) Regime and Transition to Democracy (1973–1984)	103
Post-Transitional Party-Systems and Programmatic Party–Voter Linkages	106
Chile: 1989–2010	106
Uruguay: 1984–2010	109
Summing Up: The Contemporary Configuration of Party-Voter Linkages in Chile and Uruguay	115

3. Socioeconomic Segmentation of Party–Voter Linkages in Post-Transitional Chile and Uruguay	117
Introduction	117
Methodological Strategy: Programmatic Linkage Proxies	117
The Evolution and Socioeconomic Segmentation of Programmatic Linkages in Chile (1989–2010) and Uruguay (1984–2010)	120
Significant Partisan Differences Across Programmatic Divides	121
Relative Programmatic Placements of Partisan Electorates and Congressional Delegations	122
Procrustes Analysis: Multidimensional Issue Congruence	129
Cross-Validation: Interview and Expert Survey Evidence	133
Alternative Types of Linkages and their Patterns of Socioeconomic Segmentation	139
Conclusion	141
4. Territorial Segmentation of Party–Voter Linkages in Post-Transitional Chile and Uruguay	144
Introduction and Methodological Strategy	144
Comparative Notes on Party–Voter Linkages at the Local Level in Chile and Uruguay	148
Chile: Overall Dynamics of Party–Voter Linkages at the District Level	150
Linkage Segmentation in Chilean Districts: A Classification of District Types	153
Upper-Income Sectors: “Rightist Ghettos”	154
Lower-Income Sectors Without Available Territories: “Leftist Ghettos” and Pinochet’s Successful Mayors in Congress	156
Middle and Lower-Income Districts with Available Territories: Heterogeneous Societies and Intra-District Segmentation	162
Uruguay: Overall Dynamics of Party–Voter Linkages at the District Level	171
Ideological Families and the Recrafting of Local Party Systems: A Tentative Characterization of District Types in Uruguay	171
Towards National–Local Dealignment? The Characteristics of Recent Political Leaderships at the District Level	173
The Evolution of Linkage Types at the District Level	176
The Receding of Clientelism	177

The Mutation and (Municipal) Refuge of Clientelism and Constituency Service	182
The Current Nature of Non-Programmatic Linkages in Uruguay: Overarching Implications	186
5. Strategic Harmonization of Segmented Linkages: The UDI and FA in Comparative Perspective	191
Introduction	191
Segmentation and Harmonization Strategies of the UDI and FA	192
Setting Comparative Parameters: Less Successful Parties and Strategic Harmonization	195
The UDI in Chile	202
Origins and Social Base	204
The Core Constituency	210
The UDI's Outreach to the Popular Sectors: Authoritarian         Clientelism	213
The Political Opportunity Structure for Seducing the         "Soft Vote"	214
Political Organization and the UDI's Partisan Apparatus	215
The "Popular Party" and Lavin's National Leadership	220
Corollary: The UDI's Harmonized Dual Strategy	223
The FA in Uruguay	224
Origins and Social Base	225
The FA's Core Constituency	231
The Political Opportunity Structure of the 1990s and 2000s	239
Reaching the FA's Peripheral Constituency	242
Moderation, Leadership Renewal, and Electoral Alliances	242
The Municipal Government of Montevideo	245
Reaching the FA's Emerging Constituency: The AU         and the MPP	247
The FA's Harmonized Mixed Strategy	252
The UDI and FA in Comparative Perspective	254

Part II: Causal Inference

6. Causal Induction: Explaining Linkage Structures in Chile and Uruguay	259
The Variance to Be Explained	259

The Nature of the Causal Argument: Types of Causation and Coding of Each Case	263
Explaining the Scope of Socioeconomic Segmentation and Predominant Types of Party–Voter Linkages	264
Social Inequality	264
Privatization, Social Policy Provision, and Decentralization	267
Timing of Market and State Reforms	270
Authoritarian Legacies and the Politics of the Transition to Democracy	271
Institutional Factors	271
Explaining Patterns of Territorial Segmentation	272
Explaining Types of Strategic Harmonization	274
District Magnitude	276
Separation of Municipal and National-Level Elections	276
Nomination Procedures	277
Campaign Finance Regulations	277
Privatization and State Reform	278
Individual Parties' Access to Material and Symbolic Resources	278
Conclusion	279
7. Plausibility and Scope: Out-of-Sample Tests	281
Operationalization: Identifying Non-Segmented, Segmented and Harmonized, and Segmented and Non-Harmonized Linkage Strategies	282
Strategy for Operationalizing Other Variables	288
Assessing the External Validity of Descriptive Propositions and an Overarching Causal Claim	289
External Validity of Explanatory Propositions	291
Scope of Segmentation, Predominant Linkage Types	291
Strategic Harmonization	300
Individually Successful Parties in Highly Unequal Societies	303
The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP)	303
The Alianza Republicana Nacional (ARENA)	306
The Partido dos Trabalhadores (PT)	310
The Movimiento al Socialismo (MAS)	315
Comparative Analysis of the Shadow Cases' Causal Configurations	319
Conclusion	323

Conclusion	325
Methodological Implications	327
Substantive Implications	328
Linkage Strategies' Redistributive Impacts	328
Inter-Temporal Party and Party-System Dynamics, and States'
Bureaucratic Capacity	336
Theoretical Implications	339
Bibliography	341
Name Index	365
Subject Index	371