

Contents

Note on Texts/Abbreviations	x
Introduction: Marvell and Friends	1
1. Social Contexts of Marvell's Lyric Verse, 1646–1648	13
Thomas Stanley, Cavalier Poetics, and the Order of the Black Riband	13
'To His Coy Mistress' and the Order of the Black Riband	31
2. Milton, John Hall, and Cultural Communities in Post-War London, 1646–1647	53
John Hall, the Stanley Circle, and the Hartlib Network	53
Milton and the Cavalier Mode: 'To My Friend Mr Henry Lawes'	69
John Hall and the Miltonic Example	90
3. Richard Lovelace and the End of Court Culture, 1647–1649	112
'To My Worthy Friend Mr Peter Lilly'	112
'The Grasshopper. To My Noble Friend, Mr Charles Cotton. Ode'	128
'To Lucasta. From Prison. An Epode'	143
4. Marvell and the End of Court Culture, 1648–1649	155
Allegiance, Anticlericalism, and the Cavalier Ethos	155
An Elegy Upon the Death of My Lord Francis Villiers and the Cavalier Ethos	166
'To His Noble Friend Mr Richard Lovelace' and the Poets' Town	179
5. Allegiance, Patronage, and the Reception of Marvell's Verse, 1649–1650	202
Regicide: 'Upon the Death of Lord Hastings' and 'The Unfortunate Lover'	202
'An Horatian Ode Upon Cromwell's Return from Ireland': Light and Shade, Poetry and War	221
'An Horatian Ode': Cromwell and the Protection of Wit	235
'An Horatian Ode' and its Readers: Dryden and Cowley	250
Conclusion: 'Tom May's Death' and the Ancient Right of the Poet	259
Bibliography	273
Index	288