

---

CONTENTS

---

List of figures	x
Foreword	xi
INTRODUCTION	1
1 General	1
2 The translation and causation issues	1
3 Non-introspectibility and the visual arts	4
4 A neuropsychological perspective of the non-discursive	5
5 The compatibility proposition	8
6 The representational visual image	10
7 A transformational theory of aesthetics	11
8 Concluding remarks	13
9 Chapter summary	14
1 THE BIOLOGICAL AND PROCEDURAL BASES OF NEUROPSYCHOLOGY	17
1.1 Introduction	17
1.2 The cerebral cortex	19
1.3 Tachistoscopic presentation	21
1.4 Cross-modal referencing	23
1.5 Cross-cuing	24
1.6 Dichotic listening	24
1.7 Lateral eye movement studies	27
1.8 Electrophysiological measures of cerebral asymmetry	29
1.9 Blood flow in the hemispheres	30
1.10 The Wada test	31
2 THE EXPERIMENTAL EVIDENCE	32
2.1 Introduction	32
2.2 The beginnings of lateralization research	33
2.3 Early results of tachistoscopic presentation	34
2.4 The right hemisphere's contribution to cognition	36
2.5 Two seminal experiments involving tachistoscopic presentation	39

CONTENTS

2.6	The lateralization of sound	46
2.7	Other neuropsychological evidence	48
3	THE POSSIBLE ORIGINS OF CEREBRAL SPECIALIZATION	50
3.1	Introduction	50
3.2	The phylogeny of cerebral specialization	50
3.3	David Marr's research on vision	54
3.4	The ontogeny of cerebral specialization	57
3.5	Studies of the infant and child brain	59
3.6	Personal conclusions	61
3.7	Concluding remarks	69
4	THE RIGHT-HEMISPHERE COGNITIVE PARADIGM	71
4.1	Introduction	71
4.2	The automatic, intuitive, and spatially oriented nature of the right-hemisphere paradigm	72
4.3	Intersensorial perception, memory, and the right hemisphere	73
4.4	Amodal control mechanisms	76
4.5	Amodal control mechanisms are lateralized	78
4.6	ACMs and ACLMs	80
4.7	The right hemisphere and picture perception	85
5	CHILDREN'S DRAWING	88
5.1	Introduction	88
5.2	Piaget and intersensorial perception	89
5.3	The holistic nature of children's drawing	92
5.4	The hidden meaning in children's drawing	94
5.5	The link between children's drawing and adult picture perception	99
5.6	Lateralization of function and children's drawing	104
5.7	Summary	108
6	THE LANGUAGES OF ART	109
6.1	Introduction	109
6.2	Do we learn to see pictures?	110
6.3	Art as literature?	116
6.4	Pre-iconographical and iconographical descriptions as a symptom of cerebral specialization	121
6.5	Translatability and the visual image	124
7	A TRANSFORMATIONAL THEORY OF AESTHETICS	129
7.1	Introduction	129

CONTENTS

7.2	The paradox of perceptual belief hypothesis	131
7.3	The expectations and response tendencies activated by visual imagery	133
7.4	The incomplete image	136
7.5	Cathectic transference	139
7.6	The nature of affective import	141
7.7	Affective import as aesthetic experience	143
7.8	'Talking about' the representational visual image	147
7.9	The mundane represented	150
8	ART AND AESTHETIC EXPERIENCE	153
8.1	Introduction	153
8.2	Art and the representational visual image	156
8.3	Aesthetic experience as involvement	163
8.4	Aesthetic experience as distance	166
8.5	The relative aesthetic	171
9	THE TRANSFORMATIONAL PLANES	175
9.1	Introduction	175
9.2	The surface plane	175
9.3	The three-dimensional plane	176
9.4	The representational plane	176
9.5	The content plane	177
9.6	The existential plane	178
9.7	The paradoxical plane	179
9.8	The response plane	180
9.9	The affective plane	180
9.10	The aesthetic plane	181
9.11	The discursive plane	182
	APPENDIX: PSYCHOANALYSIS AND ART	184
	Introduction	184
	Donald Winnicott's theory of culture and creative living	184
	Neoteny as an explanation for potential space	188
	The renaissance as a symptom of the rejection of potential space	191
	The necessity of accepting the reality principle	193
	A critique of Peter Fuller's adaption of Donald Winnicott's theory of culture and creative living	196
	Notes	204
	Bibliography	223
	Index	234