

Contents

Acknowledgments	7
Foreword by Micheál Ó Nualláin	9
Introduction	11
Myles' tones Joseph Brooker	17
Cuttings from Cruiskeen Lawn : bibliographical issues in the republication of Myles na gCopaleen's journalism Jon Day	32
The truth is an odd number: At swim-two-birds Kimberly Bohman-Kalaja	49
'A root of the new sprout?': Flann O'Brien, minor literature and the modern Gaelic canon Richard T. Murphy	67
' Nádúir-fhíliocht na Gaedhilge ' and Flann O'Brien's fiction Adrian Naughton	83
O'Brien's your man: Myles, modernity, and Irish national television Amy Nejezchleb	98
Plain People and Corduroys: the citizen and the artist Carol Taaffe	112
Flann O'Brien's science fiction: an 'illusion of progression' in The third policeman Samuel Whybrow	127
A portrait of the artist as a Dubliner: eroding the künstlerroman in The hard life Jennika Baines	142
Notes from an Irishman's Diary Frank McNally	157
Bibliography	167
List of contributors	172
Index	173