

THE JEWISH PHENOMENON IN SUB-SAHARAN AFRICA
The Politics of Contradictory Discourses

Marla Brettschneider

With a Foreword by Tudor Parfitt

The Edwin Mellen Press
Lewiston•Lampeter

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Foreword by Tudor Parfitt	i
Preface	iii
Acknowledgments	xii
Introduction	1
A Wide Range of Relationships to the Jewishly Related Phenomenon	3
The Field	10
An Approach to the Vexing Questions	13
Analytic Terminology: Discourses and Global North/South	17
Violence, Colonialism, and the Jewish Phenomenon in Sub-Saharan Africa	19
Concerns	23
Chapter Notes	27
Chapter 1: State	35
Introduction	35
Inspiration and Geopolitics	38
Contemporary Israel–Africa Relations and the Phenomenon	39
State Discourse	45
Incommensurability	49
Race, State, and Incommensurability	55
State and Nation	59

Chapter 2: Nation	63
Introduction	63
The Nation, European Christianity, and Critical Race Studies	65
Jewish Critical Race Theory: Jews, Blacks and What Is in a Name	72
Impact on Rabbinically Related Black Jewish Communities in the Global North	80
On Patriarchy and Racism	82
The Peoples of Israel, Black Jews, and Jews of Color More Broadly	84
Reinscribing Christianity	86
Methodological Notes	88
Conclusion	90
 Chapter 3: Rabbinic	 93
Introduction	93
Northeastern Africa	94
Many Jews in Africa, Many Perspectives	98
Rabbinic Discourse	99
Implications for Global North Jewry, the Beta Israel	101
Racial Coding	104
The Research	110
Conclusion	114

Chapter 4: Scientific	117
Introduction	117
Methodology	119
Biology as Proof	121
The Myth of Matrilineality	122
DNA as Destiny	126
Origin Stories	130
Practices and Identity	135
Conclusion	140
Chapter 5: Patriarchal	143
Introduction	143
Gender Issues on the Ground in Sub-Saharan Africa	146
Patriarchal Discourse and the Politics of Change and Stasis	150
Customs and the Problem of Recognition	157
Gender Difference and Jewish Transformations	161
Naming and Countering Patriarchal Discourse	163
Conclusion	169
Notes	175
References	193
Index	217