

TONI MORRISON AND THE IDEA OF AFRICA

LA VINIA DELOIS/JENNINGS

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Acknowledgments	page viii
Illustrations	x
1 Introduction: finding the elusive but identifiable Blackness within the culture out of which Toni Morrison writes	i
2 Dahomey's Vodun and Kongo's Yowa: the survival of West and Central African traditional cosmologies in African America	16
3 Bandoki: witches, ambivalent power, and the fusion of good and evil	23
4 Kanda: living elders, the ancestral presence, and the ancestor as foundation	81
5 Banganga: the specialists – medicine (wo)men and priest(esse)s	137
6 Identifiable Blackness: Toni Morrison's literary canon at the Western crossroads	178
Notes	185
Works cited	219
Index	227